SMALL FLIES TO THOMPSON FOR COMFORT

Indicted Illinois Governor to Discuss His Troubles With Chicago Mayor and Other Political Chiefs, Is Report

Advisability of Calling Out Troops to Resist Arrest Is Considered; Adjutant General Is Ready to Mobilize

By CARL VICTOR LITTLE, United Press Staff Correspondent. CHICAGO, July 23.—The indicted governor of Illinois, who is charged with the murder of a state senator, is expected to arrive in Chicago today. He is expected to discuss his troubles with the Chicago mayor and other political chiefs, it is reported. The governor is expected to arrive in Chicago today. He is expected to discuss his troubles with the Chicago mayor and other political chiefs, it is reported.

Small's visit to Chicago, his political stronghold, was unannounced. He came surrounded by a vigilant bodyguard of three burles. Small was indicted for conspiracy, embezzlement and operating a confidence game by a grand jury at Springfield, the state capital.

The governor by the court, has three days of grace before a sheriff's posse will attempt to arrest him. On the first day, Small flew to the arms of Mayor Thompson and other political advisers. It was generally expected that Small and Thompson conferred on the advisability of calling out the state troops, if necessary to prevent arrest.

Adjutant General Frank S. Dickson, in full uniform, made a hurried trip to Camp Logan today, where the militia is camped. General Dickson, who has given the historic state house of Sangamon county a warlike aspect, has told the governor that troops can be mobilized in twenty minutes.

SMALL TO TALK AT THOMPSON MEETING. Small's conference with Chicago's mayor was dubbed "Thompson's last stand" by enemies of the powerful political machine. The governor's indictment comes on the heels of Thompson's recent reputation by his own city council, which voted to investigate the hiring of high paid city militia. Several of Thompson's pet measures have been frowned upon of late by the city council.

Small late today will carry his fight to the people. He is slated for an address at a picnic sponsored by Thompson's followers. It was at a similar celebration a year ago that Small announced his candidacy for governor and was zealously acclaimed.

The Small was holding his war council in Chicago, his attorneys at Springfield said. If the governor submitted to arrest it would be a surrender of the executive powers to the judiciary and a violation of his oath of office.

STATE TROOPS REPORTED READY TO MOBILIZE. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 23.—State troops were ready to spring to arms on 20 minutes' notice today to protect Governor Len Small from arrest.

The governor, charged with embezzlement of $500,000 state funds, will resist arrest to the uttermost, it was stated at the state capital today.

Adjutant General Frank S. Dickson was sitting around the state house in full uniform following his conference with Small, during which he stated that the militia could be mobilized as soon as 20 minutes after the governor issued the call.

Deck-Chair Lotharios Fail To Intrigue Guatemala Girl

SENORITA MARTHA ESCOBAR DE LOS COBOS, who is returning from Guatemala with her father after a tour of the Orient.

Senorita Says Romancing Not Only Affair of Southern Belles

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Returning with her father, a Guatemalan, who, after a tour of the Orient, she will re-enter the social life of the capital of that Central American republic, Senorita Martha Escobar de los Cobos is here today. She arrived on the China Mail liner Nanking.

The return of father and daughter marks the interruption of a world tour for Senorita Escobar, who found it necessary to go back to Guatemala to take an active part in the conference now being held looking to a Federal union of the Central American republics.

Though young and pretty and of a family of wealth and prominence, Senorita Escobar successfully withstood the pleas of steamer-chauffeurs to take a trip across the ocean, and, surprisingly declared, upon her arrival that she was not ready for marriage yet.

"Central American girls are beginning to make more serious things than romancing," she said. "They are beginning to wake up and take an interest in the affairs of the day as American girls do. I know a number of girls in action and planning to come to the University of California and other American institutions in the fall."

PARIS SENDS NEW ARMY TO SILESIA

Complete Division With War Equipment Under Orders to Rush to Scene of Latest Crisis in Eastern Europe

In Face of British Demand for Meeting of Supreme Council France Demands London Provide Troops

PARIS, July 23.—In the face of British opposition to the sending of more allied troops in Upper Silesia, a French division is under orders from Marshal Foch today to leave for Upper Silesia at once. It was expected that they would entrain during the day. The division is complete, war footing with heavy and light artillery, airplanes and tanks. France has made further representations to the British government, insisting on the transfer of more allied troops to Upper Silesia immediately in view of the fact that France cannot consent to an immediate meeting of the supreme council to take up the Silesia issue.

Premier Briand shows not the slightest sign of giving in to the British demand for a meeting of the supreme council this month. Premier Briand has despatched a telegram to Berlin, requesting that the German government take all necessary steps to insure safe conduct through Germany of a new division of French troops en route to Silesia.

FRANCE DECLARED ENVOYING TROOPS. PARIS, July 23.—France will be responsible if a Polish insurrection breaks out in Upper Silesia, declares Minister of the Interior Georges Clemenceau in a statement published by the Tagblatte today.

"Only a speedy decision regarding Upper Silesia can avert a great disaster," the minister says. "The situation is critical. A Polish insurrection can only break out if France desires it and brings it about."

FRENCH PRESS CALL FOR ACTIVE AGGRESSION. PARIS, July 23.—Speaking of the treaty of Versailles and the plebiscite, which it provides shall determine the status of Silesia, the Petit Parisien says:

"France does not expect a fulfillment of the treaty except by force. France will only be content when she knows that she can resist as she realizes that if Germany can absorb Poland and other Danube states the horrors of last centuries will be repeated."

'Liar' Is Hurlled At Hearing on Bergdoll Charge. BROTHER OF SLACKER ROILED BY ACCUSATION OF KENTUCKY CONGRESSMAN.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The short and ugly word followed by what threatened to be a lively physical fight, brought a sudden adjournment this afternoon of the Congressional investigation into the escape of Grover C. Bergdoll, millionaire slacker.

Representative Johnson of Kentucky accused Charles Braun of Philadelphia, brother of Bergdoll, who was on the witness stand, of not telling the truth.

"You are a liar!" Braun replied, the rest of his statement being lost in the uproar that followed as the Kentuckian plunged toward the witness.

Return of Garb Of Eden Forced Upon Europeans

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, July 23.—People in Central Europe are "nearer nakedness" than at any time since the Napoleonic wars, according to reports and observers summarized today by the Red Cross headquarters. The situation, it was added, would reach a climax this winter. Food conditions are reported improved. The depreciation of currency, the summary says, requires a university professor in Vienna to work three months to buy a suit of clothes, while a pair of shoes in Poland cannot be bought without bringing hunger to the average family for a month.

"So desperate is the situation," the summary added, "that babies are born with no provisions made for clothing them and the sick in hospitals are dependent upon paper bandages."

Harding Will Whip Streams on Week-End Trip

President Joins Party of Campers, Including Ford and Edison

By FRANK A. STETSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, July 23.—Warren G. Harding, president of the United States today and became a tourist camper, bent on a week-end excursion.

Garbed in rough tweeds and with vacation paraphernalia packed in his touring car, the President left the White House at 3:30 at the head of a caravan of motor cars, bound for Eekville, Md., where the chief executive will join the Firestone-Edison-Ford camping party.

The presidential camping party was incomplete, for Mrs. Harding, who is the constant companion of the President, did not make the trip. For several days the "first lady" has been slightly indisposed and upon the advice of Brigadier General Sawyer, White House physician, she remained in Washington. General Sawyer, Secretary of the Christian, the usual secret service men and a flock of newspaper correspondents made up the party.

The caravan, the President will spend the next 24 hours on the banks of Licking creek, about 17 miles from Hagerstown, Md. Lurid tales of the abounding fish in Licking creek have reached the President's ears and this afternoon he plans to sit in solid comfort on the banks of these well-preserved waters and "just fish."

The President is the "ruest" of Harvey S. Firestone and Bishop William C. Brewster of Cincinnati. The members of the camping party are:

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Firestone of Akron; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Brewster of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison of East Orange, N. J.

Speeches are not on the presidential program today, but if he escapes without making a few informal addresses he will be most fortunate.

Matson Ship Puts Into L. A. With Story of Salt Water Placed in Boilers.

LOS ANGELES, July 23.—Carrying 400 passengers and with one boiler entirely disabled, the Matson Navigation company's liner Hawkeye State, 22 days limped into Los Angeles harbor today, twelve days overdue and with a large number of the passengers ill on account of drinking boiled salt water. According to Robert Burns Bell, a spokesman of the passengers, the ship was officered mainly by college students who were hired during the marine strike.

Since July 16, the Hawkeye State has been continually in trouble. Several times her boilers have been found filled with salt water and on numerous occasions her crews have been ordered to higher wages. Many of the passengers disembarked at Los Angeles to proceed to San Francisco by rail.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 23.—A mob is gathering at Sedalia, Mo., intent upon lynching Theodore Wernick, 17-year-old white boy, who yesterday is alleged to have murdered a Negro. The mob is being organized by a telephone message to Governor Hyde from the prosecuting attorney of Pettis county.

CONCESSION MAY BRING IRISH PEACE

Impression Grows That Offer Made by British Premier to Republican Leader Will Work Out in Settlement

Fiscal Autonomy Plan For Ulster Expected to Remove One Bone of Contention; Smuts Will Go To Ireland.

LONDON, July 23.—(By the Associated Press).—The outstanding feature of the government's Irish peace proposals to Eamon de Valera is a concession of fiscal autonomy, it was stated on high authority here today. The position of Ulster is simply secured.

General Jan C. Smuts, the South African premier, is expected to leave London for Ireland early next week, probably Monday to place his services at the disposal of both Eamon de Valera, the Republican leader, and Sir James Craig, the Ulster leader. The British government is expected to announce the Irish peace proposals made by Premier Lloyd George.

REMIER TO TELL NEGOTIATIONS. A meeting of the Daily Eireann for the purpose of considering the British offer is expected for next week, but Sinn Fein leaders here appear to feel that ten days or more will elapse before notable developments can occur. Meanwhile, the publication of the proposals is not anticipated unless Premier Lloyd George and De Valera reach an agreement to that effect.

Two important points which seem to have considerable bearing on the negotiations are, first, whether another meeting between Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, and De Valera can be arranged in Ireland, and second, whether an amended version of the present Home Rule act would be satisfactory to the Irish Republicans should such a solution be offered.

It was predicted that, barring new obstacles, President de Valera would return to London within a fortnight, not to accept the plan in its present form.

The settlement of Sinn Feiners is preferable to a potential dominion home rule, which does not include the right to control the land, to raise a separate army and which lacks any of the free features which comprise the constitutions of other dominions.

There appeared, however, one vital reason for hope. A sober sincerity holds both factions against reopening the old war wound, which every day of delay would be a merciless fight to death.

There seems a sentiment here in Dublin that the Irish republican army has won its age-old war.

DE VALERA WARMLY GREETED AT DUBLIN. DUBLIN, July 23.—(By the Associated Press).—Eamon de Valera and his party reached the Mansion House in London yesterday afternoon. Great crowds gave them an enthusiastic welcome. The party was met at Kingstown, whence they motored to Dublin, by Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, the mayor of Waterford, representatives of the Dublin Corporation, and other prominent persons.

On his arrival at the Mansion House, de Valera was greeted by Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith, held a brief reception.

De Valera, addressing the crowd outside, declared that if the peace treaty is accepted, they had during the last two years they would not need to talk about freedom; they would have it.

BELFAST, July 23.—(By the Associated Press).—A copy of the Irish peace terms, handed by Premier Lloyd George to Eamon de Valera, was placed before and considered by the Ulster cabinet yesterday. No opinion on the terms was requested by the British premier. It is stated, and none has been given.

Crane On Way to U. S. Through Russia

Stricken Areas in Russia Seek Aid From World

(By Associated Press) LONDON, July 23.—The All-Russian Trades Union Council has decided to appeal to the world proletariat for aid in the famine-stricken areas of Russia, said a dispatch to the Daily Herald, the labor organ, from Moscow. The commission for assistance to the starving, the dispatch adds, met at Moscow. Those present included Leonide Krassin, soviet minister of trade and commerce, and Maxim Gorky.

It was decided to operate under the Red Cross. Relief work has begun in Petrograd. WASHINGTON, July 23.—Copies of a general appeal for aid for cholera-swept soviet Russia have been received by officials here, it was learned today. It was issued by Maxim Gorky to "all honest men."

The state department today refused to discuss the Russian situation.

Hundreds Killed During Violent Morocco Battle

Natives Attack Spaniards and Reinforcements Are Sent From Madrid. BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE LEADS WIRE TO TRIBUNE. PARIS, July 23.—Violent fighting in which several hundred Spanish soldiers are reported to have been killed, has broken out in Morocco, said a dispatch received here today from Madrid. Spanish reinforcements are being sent to Morocco.

King Alfonso hurried to Madrid from his summer castle at San Sebastian to consider the Moroccan situation with his cabinet. The fighting developed when Moroccan tribes delivered a heavy attack against the Spaniards in the Melilla district.

MADRID, July 23.—(By The Associated Press).—Rumors of a startling nature relative to the situation in the Spanish zone of Morocco, where Spain is engaged in a campaign against rebellious tribesmen, have been in circulation since late evening, but no confirmation has been made up to shortly before noon today.

King Alfonso, said a San Sebastian message, received here, left there suddenly for Madrid. His presence in the capital, it was said, was necessary owing to the seriousness of events in Morocco.

SPANISH FORCES LOSE HEAVILY

JAPAN BARS TWO ISSUES IN ACCEPTING

Tokyo to Join in Disarming Parley if Yap Question Is Eliminated and Treaty of Versailles Is Not Attacked

Need of Preliminary British Conference On Questions of Pacific Not Recognized by U. S., London Is Told

By DUKE N. PARRY, International News Service Staff Correspondent. TOKYO, July 22, 6 p. m. (delayed). The advisory council, Japanese highest governmental authority, this evening approved the decision of the cabinet to accept President Harding's invitation to participate in a disarmament conference to be held in Washington. It is understood, however, on reliable authority, that in accepting Japan holds that the Shantung issue and the Yap Island controversy hold special positions.

Japan, according to this information, will take the stand that both matters have been settled by the treaty of Versailles and will present the argument that in taking this position Japan is simply upholding the stipulations of that treaty.

ABILITY OF JAPANESE LEADER QUESTIONED

The wave of sentiment in favor of Premier Harding, heading the Japanese delegation today, was beginning to meet some opposition. Although the Kenesekai or opposition party, had gone on record as demanding his attendance at the disarmament conference, Leader Takekumi today came out in opposition today. Takekumi declared that Premier Hara did not "possess sufficient confidence" to successfully cope with such diplomatic matters as Premier Briand of France.

By A. L. BRADFORD, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, July 23.—The United States has informed the British government that it does not believe there should be any postponement of the disarmament and Pacific conference in Washington, or that there should be any preliminary conference on the Pacific affairs in London. It was stated on high authority today.

By NEWTON C. PARKE, International News Service Staff Correspondent. LONDON, July 23.—Premier Lloyd George is becoming apprehensive over the troublesome complications which are besetting the arrangements for the proposed Washington conference on disarmament and Far East issues, his friends revealed today.

The premier was quoted as saying to an intimate: "I had never suggested a conference."

OBSTACLES FEARED BY LLOYD GEORGE

Three obstacles confront the premier: Premier Hughes of Australia is insisting upon an Australian representation in the Pacific discussions. Premier McElwain of Canada is supporting his Australian colleague, Lloyd George fears that the suggestion that the extent of putting the proposal directly up to George Hays, the American ambassador, is response has yet arrived from Washington, and Lloyd George is beginning to fear that there is no chance for a preliminary conference in London.

2. Premier Lloyd George realizes it is useless for him to take the United States unless there is an Irish settlement in the meantime.

3. Leaders of the coalition party present the possible absence of Lloyd George from England, fearing that Austen Chamberlain would be unable to hold the coalition party together in his absence.

In connection with Premier Lloyd George's statement in Commons, Great Britain would continue the construction of warships, the Daily Mail declared today that the cabinet supports the premier's view and that it favors the building of capital ships and a continuation of the naval program.

For several years Britain will construct almost for her own power, the Daily Mail version of the ministerial decision.

DISABLED PLANE LANDS SAFELY IN OREGON CRATER

Cadet Flier Performs Daring Feat; Others Aid With Parachutes.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Details of a landing and take-off, said

This latest adventure of the air included the silent swoop of a disabled airplane from an altitude of 5,000 feet into the volcanic gulf of Crater Lake, Ore., a miraculous landing on a tiny island, a parachute rescue and a desperate, though suc-

The cadet was Raymond C. Fisher

Fisher was patrolling Crater National forest above the rugged rim of Mt. St. Helens, when he spotted a dead mountain goat at a height of 15,000 feet when the engine of his De Havilland went dead. A landing was necessary at once, and he landed in the lee of the steep slopes of the mountains was impossible.

LANDS IN "MOON-HOLE."

In the distance there was a great "moon-hole," caused by a yawning chasm at the bottom of which the blue waters of Crater lake. Out in the lake was a black island of black lava.

Fisher decided to risk the island. He shot down in the crater hole, felt the walls of the cliffs rise above him and bumped down on the rocky bottom. He landed on the island.

The aviator looked over his engine and found that without new spark plugs he could not start the engine. He then tried his wireless apparatus.

After hours of waiting a distant patrol "picked up" his calls, and by night five airplanes were circling above the cliffs trying to lend assistance to the imprisoned aviator. None dared to attempt a landing, and they flew back and forth, testing the bumpy air currents. Then one pilot, flying as close as he dared to the cliffs released a parachute, which dropped into the lake.

As darkness came, Fisher burned flares. All five machines sent down parachutes as accurately as their pilots could. Finally, a signal from below declared that one had landed on the island and had been found by Fisher. The parachute carried spark plugs and food for the imprisoned aviator.

The next morning Fisher repaired his engine and started his plane. Then the big machine bumped over the rocky island, left the ground and shot out over the lake. Before he could be free he had to climb 2000 feet in that constricted space. He was back on the ground, fought the twisting air currents, circled again and again and at last shot over the edge of the bowl and headed west.

GENERAL STRIKE POSSIBILITY NOW BELIEVED SLIGHT

S. F. Labor Council Defers Action On Plea of Build- ing Trades.

Possibilities for a general strike in the bay cities as a result of the efforts toward that end of the "adjustment committee" of the San Francisco Building Trades Council are considered slight by leaders in the Trades Council and Central Labor Union today. Following action of the latter body in refusing to take any hasty action and the declarations of officials of the Trades Council that the committee did not represent the membership, the situation in San Francisco is waiting developments from a series of meetings today and Monday.

Monday's meeting of the building trades crafts with the special committee from the San Francisco chamber of commerce will see an agreement plan broached and discussed. There are some who are hopeful that the result will be an agreement similar to that signed on this side of the bay.

O'CONNELL STATES LABOR UNION POSITION.

The delegates from the Trades Council committee pleaded with the Central Labor Union in San Francisco for more than two hours last night in their effort to have immediate action taken toward the calling of a general strike. The Central Labor Union position was stated by John A. O'Connell, secretary, as follows:

"You come here before us at this eleventh hour and ask us to throw everything we have into the balance immediately to serve your momentary need. You have been in the rolls of this controversy since May 9. You came to us for help at 8:30 o'clock this evening. It is now 9 o'clock and you practically demand an immediate decision on our part.

"We offered you our help when you were first beset by this thing which threatened to crush you. We were told bluntly to mind our own business.

"We have—and now you come to us again, a shattered man. Not one of your officers is with you. We have been told tonight of the valiant militancy of the Building Trades Council and how they were ready to fight to the death in this controversy.

"ALLEGES PROFIT BY MISUNDERSTANDINGS. "This militancy never existed among you. We have seen nothing of it since May 9. You say that we have had misunderstandings between us in the past; we have, and we will have more of them in the future. We profit by them.

"The Building Trades Council has the power to pull from his job every one of its officers. The Labor Council, fortunately for itself, has not that power, and I hope that it never will have.

"Before we move to ask our unions to join their men and the dependents of those men adrift on the streets of this city, it is only fair to us that we be permitted to put this thing into any overnight action on anything in behalf of anyone."

Records Destroyed; Dry Cases Dropped

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—It has been discovered that many cases against men alleged to have broken the prohibition regulations, and which are now pending in the federal courts here, must be dismissed owing to the fact that written records attached to the receptacles said to have contained seized liquor, have been destroyed. The number of cases which will be affected amounts into the hundreds, it is said.

Union Construction Employees to Dance

Arranged by the works committee, appointed by employees of the plant, employees of the Union Construction Company at the foot of Fourteenth street will give a dance tonight in the mould building. ### Mrs. Martha A. Henderson Marries Her Husband Second Time.

Martha Irene Henderson today was granted an annulment of her marriage to Tom T. Henderson. Five months after her husband's death, she was married to him again and then returned to her home, 1320 Pacific avenue, Alameda, where they hope to live happily ever afterwards.

The annulment of one marriage and immediate contracting of another resulted from Mrs. Henderson's misunderstanding of the legal niceties. "A little more than a year ago she was granted a divorce from her first husband, David Morgan, in San Francisco.

On April 9, 1921, Martha Irene Morgan and Tom T. Henderson were granted a marriage license and were married. Two months later she was notified that the interlocutory decree of divorce given her had been confirmed and the divorce made final.

Uneasy at the shadow cast by the recalling of her divorce from Morgan, she asked an attorney for advice. She was told her marriage to Henderson was invalid because at the time her divorce from Morgan had not been absolute. With Henderson she hastened to file suit for an annulment of the marriage, and then hastened to be married again.

Held Prisoner in Labor Temple, Claim

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Victor J. Brodie, 2315 Sutter street, was charged yesterday with having held three men prisoner in the Labor Temple, Sixteenth and Capp street, and kept him there several hours in an effort to force him to join the chauffeurs' union. Brodie is employed as a chauffeur by R. L. Dinley of the General Service Corporation, 1216 Hewes building. Union officials deny the charge.

Principle of Love In Industry Urged

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Dr. Henry E. Jackson, head of the National Community Board of Washington, spoke before the Chamber of Commerce last night on the subject "The New Industrial Revolution." In his talk Dr. Jackson said that the principle which would revolutionize industry would be profitable to both workingman and manufacturer, was the principle of love.

Dr. Harry S. Moore Takes Out License for Marriage to Clara E. Hogue.

SAN JOSE, July 23.—Dr. Harry S. Moore, of 2758 Union street, San Francisco, prominent physician of that city, was yesterday afternoon granted a marriage license to wed Miss Clara Elizabeth Hogue, also of San Francisco, the marriage to be solemnized August 4, according to information obtainable.

Excavation for Stadium Now Is Half Completed

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, July 23.—The excavation being made for the new Stanford stadium will be half completed tomorrow, when 114,000 cubic yards of dirt will have been removed to the banks on the side of the hill. About 300,000 cubic yards are being taken out daily.

The removal of the earth is being concentrated on the eastern side of the hill, and it is expected that the work of construction on the bleachers in that section will be started within the next two weeks.

A force of men was put to work this week cutting down the trees on the land adjacent to the stadium in order to provide adequate parking space for the thousands of machines expected here the day of the big game.

Lowden Gives Praise To Late Asa Morris

WOODLAND, July 23.—American Holstein breeder, Miss Asa Morris, who was killed in an automobile accident at Dunsmuir two weeks ago, writes former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois to members of the family of the deceased. His letter to the widow says:

"The tragic death of Asa W. Morris comes as a shock to the Holstein breeders of America. His achievements in the improvement of the breed have made him known wherever Holstein cows are known, and that is pretty nearly everywhere. His life work and his success should be an inspiration to the young farmers and breeders everywhere. He will be sorely missed in our circles.

"Sincerely yours,
"FRANK O. LOWDEN."

Village Is Without Officials; in Jail

ST. PAUL, July 23.—The village of Buhl is without a mayor, recorder or other city officials to transact business according to an appeal from the village board. The five officials were recently sentenced to sixty days in jail on contempt of court charges by Federal Judge Page Morris in Duluth.

An opinion has been asked of the state's attorney-general whether or not the governor "could give us a head of the village for the time being."

Christian Church For Disarmament

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., July 23.—A resolution favoring disarmament was passed by the State Christian Church convention here yesterday, and it was announced that a copy of it will be sent to President Harding. Twenty-three reports were read to the convention today and addresses were given by the secretaries of the organization.

ARCHIVES SHOW CAUSE OF TRIBES' DISAPPEARANCE

Unratified Treaties Reported Connected With the Death of Indians

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Existence of a group of 18 unratified and inoperative treaties in the archives of the senate of the United States, and the virtual wiping out of the Indian population of California, estimated at 350,000 in 1800, would appear to be the uninitiated to have little or no connection. But the report of the investigating committee of the California State Board of Health, made recently, established a very close connection.

The unratified treaties explain why Legro, a Digger Indian agitator, succeeded in keeping investigators out of the Big Valley Region of the state where there must have been as great a number of Indians as there were at the time of the old massacre days. They explain also why a great number of the 15,000 remaining are compelled to live on sterile lava beds in the northeastern corner of the state, where their horses and cattle drop through great jagged crevasses, and to the scene of death where they are trying with poor success to wring a living from the grudging land.

TREATIES OF FIFTIES.

"The treaties drawn up between May 31, 1851, and January 5, 1852, by a special commission of the United States government and the eighteen Indian groups in California, were completed to guarantee to the redman in perpetuity his hunting and fishing places in return for certain land concessions. It was believed that the senate was favorable to them until they were memorialized by the California senate in 1852 to oppose them, and certain powerful land interests campaigned successfully against them.

During the Indian lands were surveyed and opened to settlement by the whites, and gradually the redmen were huddled onto the lava beds of the Hat Creek district of Shasta County, the rocky-bare expanse of Big Valley and the sterile strip that extends from above Fort Bidwell in northern Modoc to below the Lassen national home. There was no migration to the better lands, and where, for the time being, there is no land better than the homeland and bit by bit the Indians were crowded to the lava beds and the other friendly camping spots. They moved up on the lava beds and the lava rock country, where they could still find some game, and on the thriving Pitt River valley, where the old peaks. This passion for the land of their forefathers constitutes one of the principal reasons, according to the state report, why the Indians have not been able to make the time the treaties were negotiated to the 15,000 of today.

DAWES ACT FAILURE.

"Under the Dawes act of 1887, the government sought to correct the unjust conditions as the unratified treaties had been made, and allot to each worthy Indian an adequate piece of workable land. But the operation of the law was so faulty, it is said, that many Indians did not accept their allotment, believing the land given them was absolutely worthless.

"So thoroughly has the California Indian race been broken down by the man for his necessities and for the wherewithal with which to keep alive that he has virtually forgotten the old principles of his race, which were founded on ceremony and oratory of his prosperity. With all their poverty and hardship, however, the Indian pride remains with the tribes, and it is this pride, in the opinion of the writer, that is the only thing that has kept them from being completely wiped out.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Frances Redman One of Year's Beautiful Brides

The marriage of Miss Frances Redman and Lloyd Roberts last evening presented to society quite the most beautiful bride of the year.

She entered the church—the Interdenominational in Piedmont—on the arm of her father, Leander Redman, the San Francisco attorney, a lovely thing to look upon in a robe of net, iridescent below the knees, draped over soft satin, décolleté and without sleeves—her veil falling softly over the arms and spreading to a full train—yards of it. The net, the foundation of a lace veil, embroidered high at the back, a coronet of orange blossoms holding it in place just above her blue eyes.

At the chancel, the bride was surrounded by a mass of color, her attendants wearing complementary colors in taffetas—green, rose, apricot, orchid and blue. They were little Emmie Chiles, cousin of the bride, the flower bearer; Mrs. Howard Sebastian, likewise a cousin, Harold Cushman Lewis, Thomas Campbell, Arthur Lamb and Miss Dorothy Wishart.

Ray, the best man, with Howard Sebastian, George Stimmel, Elling Erey, Thomas Mitchell and George McClure, ushers, made up the bridal party.

After the service, read by the Reverend C. D. Milliken, the newly wedded pair received the congratulations of their friends in the foyer of the church, leaving after the greeting for a brief journey that will take them south.

Returning they will make their home on the lake, the apartment being quite ready to receive them on their return.

THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT.

The Presidio is again coming into its own, the scars of war and rumors of wars wearing down.

Last night the reception-dance at the Officers' Club, honoring the new division commander, General William Mason Wright and Mrs. Wright, was a spectacular affair—the formal greeting of the Presidio to the new occupant of official headquarters at Fort Mason.

And Colonel Thomas Pearce, commanding officer of the Presidio, with Mrs. Pearce, stood in line, with Colonel J. T. Clark, Major George Gillis, "Q. M.," and Mrs. Gillis assisting.

A score of dinners preceded the social life of the Presidio, and the club-house, the scene of the social life of the Presidio, since 1776 was dressed up for the party with flags and flowers, as became the significance of the affair.

Captain and Mrs. Frank Ogden crossed the bandstand to the Roberts-Redman wedding at the Piedmont Interdenominational church, returning in time to pay their respects to the new division commander, who is a charming wife, who will do much to the social life of the bay country.

TO JOIN SINGER.

Mrs. Josephine Roseborough (Josephine Adair), who has been living at one of the exclusive women's hotels in Gotham during her engagement to the late Mr. Roseborough, will take an apartment for the winter, where she will be joined by her mother, Mrs. Heinrich, in a few weeks.

RETURNED FROM HONEYMOON.

After a tarrying-time in New York and later in Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shock (Edwene Bakewell) have returned to Detroit, where the new home will be established.

After the Canadian trip the newly-weds spent a month at Cass lake, a fashionable suburb of Detroit, where the Shocks will encounter a gay season of welcoming-home, the family of the room having many ramifications and a wide circle of friends, all of whom will welcome the brilliant little singer from California.

While at the Boston Conservatory the bride was ardently urged to carry her work on to the operatic stage, but the lure of a career was not strong enough to offset the suit of the Detroit lawyer, who came to California to meet her.

Mrs. Adige Bakewell, who went East with her daughter last spring, is expected to return in September.

BERKELEY SCOUT Saves Comrade From Drowning

BERKELEY, July 23.—With the return of two troops of Berkeley Boy Scouts from an outing in the Yosemite Valley, it became known that a drowning had been effected by a scout of the university city. The latest hero is Lisle Seymour. He saved a fellow scout, Walter Perrie, from drowning in the Merced river. Young Perrie was wading in a swift current and was carried into deep water. His cry for help was answered by Seymour, who had great difficulty in getting his drowning companion out of the river. Perrie was unconscious when finally dragged out, but was quickly resuscitated.

S. P. Gang Quits After Threat of War on County

PICK Handle Battle Averted When Yolo Engineer Calls Company's Bluff.

WOODLAND, July 23.—Two hundred and fifty men lined up for battle at Knights Landing Thursday night when County Engineer Asa G. Due undertook the paving of a forty-foot strip of road leading up to the Southern Pacific bridge at Grafton. Proctors on both sides assembled 300 men employed in county work, while the railroad company got together several construction crews aggregating fifty men, in charge of Roadmaster De Pae.

The railroad company placed a pile of ties across the road leading to the bridge and defied Proctor to remove them before the bridge was threatened to turn the steam of a locomotive on any who attempted to enter the right-of-way of the railroad.

Proctor immediately defied the railroad heads to make road their threat, promising to throw the Southern Pacific "mercenaries" into the Sacramento river if they showed any sign of flight. The construction crew withdrew and the strip of highway was constructed during the night hours.

California Redwood park at Big Basin, which appointment was given last year by Governor William D. Stephens, as well as his position as director of the California Semipalmated and vice-president of the Santa Clara County Travelers' Aid Society, in which he was highly active. His influence in this community, and at the University of Santa Clara will be deeply missed.

PROVISION GIVES MAJOR POWER OF APPOINTMENT

Freeholders Submit Plan for Selection of Eleven School Directors.

The mayor of the proposed city and county government is given the power to appoint the eleven members of the board of education in charter provisions released today by the Board of Freeholders. One member would be appointed from each of the seven council districts and two from the county at large. This board of education would have the power to select a superintendent of education. Its provision is the first to give any appointive power to the mayor, the city manager having the naming of all of the other appointive officers. Members of the board of education under the plan announced today, would serve without pay.

The provisions released are those from Section 135 to 147 and include mainly details of procedure in the school department. How meetings are called, the school budget, powers of the superintendent of schools, etc., are outlined and the rules from the present rules and system.

Brave Janitor Saves Girl at Risk of Life

Young Woman Snatched from Railroad Track as Speed- ing Train Flashes By.

SAN JOSE, July 23.—Miss Emma Gendin, 35, of 340 North 13th street, today owes her life to the bravery and quick action of Axel Sealund, janitor of the Bank of San Jose building, this city. Sealund yesterday saved the young woman from being run over by a fast-moving train as she lay beneath the wheels of a Southern Pacific train.

Miss Gendin has been in ill health for some time, suffering from a nervous breakdown. Yesterday morning late, she disappeared from her home and police were asked to search for her. It was not until the incident of Sealund's bravery was disclosed yesterday afternoon that it was known where she was.

Miss Gendin's whereabouts about became known. The young woman, either walking at random in loss of memory or with purposeful intent, was taken away to the Southern Pacific tracks at Fourth and Carey streets, in the southern part of the city. There, just as a fast-moving passenger train was approaching the spot where she was standing, Miss Gendin stepped onto the track and there remained motionless and staring.

Sealund, passing on a bicycle, saw the young woman, predicament jumped from his wheel and, rushing to her side, grasped her in his arms and carried her to safety just as the train sped over the spot where the young woman had been standing.

Miss Gendin screamed and half-fainted following the incident, and Sealund notified the local emergency hospital and later the police. Sealund was taken to her home, where she was moved again to her home.

Workers at the Shaw Family, Inc., cannery, witnessed the quick action of Sealund and later the police told his bravery. Sealund, himself, told nothing of the incident, merely asking aid for the young woman, after which he left the scene.

Lineman Killed By 4000 Volt Electric Shock

Employee of Great Western Power Company Meets Death At Isleton.

RIO VISTA, July 23.—R. A. Leverison, 24-years old, was electrocuted at Isleton Thursday afternoon while at work on a Great Western Power line. Four thousand volts passed through Leverison when he accidentally came in contact with a wire.

At first hope was held out for his recovery. When Leverison touched the wire, he shouted, "Oh, I'm all right," but a few minutes later he fell back into his safety belt. He was taken down by his fellow workers who administered first aid, but all efforts failed to revive him.

Deceased had been employed here by the Great Western Power company during the last eight months, coming from Los Angeles. Leverison was a single man, and a native of Fargo, N. D.

C. L. Killam, local manager of the power company, has sent telegrams to his relatives and friends and is holding pending instructions.

Stockmen Aroused By Big Grass Fires

LIVERMORE, July 22.—A special meeting was held in Foresters hall by the Livermore Stockmen's Protective Association to investigate the two serious grass fires of the previous week. The fire in the Bonita tract ran over from 200 to 600 acres and investigation on this fire is still underway. Before many days pass, the grass is expected to be a big fire. The fire broke out in the Bonita tract and spread to the farm buildings, were saved by the quick response of the Alameda county fire patrol, but several chickens were killed. One hundred men fought the fire under the leadership of County Fire Warden John McGinnis and Deputy County Fire Warden Clark Clark of Livermore. At the same time a fire broke out in the Taylor mountain and Cedar mountain districts. The quick work of William McGinnis, son of County Fire Warden John McGinnis, in rushing his father and other firefighters to this fire resulted in saving the Livermore cattleman, thousands of acres of feed. As it was the first time a fire was by the serious nature, burning over several sections. The fire-blighters worked 26 hours straight.

Up to the present time there have been twenty-five fires and the loss in Alameda county has been less than in any other county.

My Husband

By Adele Garrison

My Mother Graham Worried Madge.

Little Mrs. Durkee, Mother Graham and Aunt Dora, seated together, two devoted cavaliers in Dickie's Maj. Grantland. One would have thought that they were girls of so adolescent were the two men in their attentions. And I, though for the first time in many moons, found myself a decided wallflower, yet I was happier than I had been for months past.

But though I understood and loved my mother's extravagant devotion to the elderly women, yet I could not help wondering just what impelled Mr. Grantland's action.

The weather must be changing, I thought. It's very odd in here. I had slept late—as, indeed, had all—upon the morning following the wedding, but she had appeared unusually languid and tired the breakfast table, and the rest for a fire startled me as the sun was unusually warm one.

She was sitting in a sort of huddled position in her chair, and I served that the hands with which she was mending one of Junior's little shoes were shaking.

"I am afraid you are not feeling all right," I said solicitously. "Don't you think you would better get up and go to bed?"

"Oh, no!" she exploded. "If it's a bit of a chill for an old woman to get up and go to bed, why am I to get up and go to bed? You get up and fix that fire unless, of course, you do not wish to use the wood or take the trouble to build it." She had drawn herself erect in her chair, and I saw with dismay at her cheeks were flushed, while her eyes had a curious, inflamed, watery appearance, as if she had been weeping.

Instinctual. The dreaded word seemed to resound in my ears from depths of an alarmed consciousness from which it had sprung. "Now the variable symptoms for my Junior, Katie, Jim and myself had had mild attacks of the same at intervals during the winter. My mother-in-law and father had escaped, something which I was profoundly grateful for. But I was very sure that Mother's attack was 'coming down' with it, and I was wildly anxious to get her up and begin to minister to her soon as possible. I knew better, however, than to say anything more about it for a few minutes. She was one of the cantankerous moods when any insistence on my part would have sent her into an unrelenting rage. The thought of her capable of going out and getting the fuel to build the fire if I did not hasten, I knew perfectly well.

So I rose hurriedly and went to the door, tossing back the protest. I saw she wanted over my shoulder. "How perfectly absurd, mother!" said. "You know I'm only too glad to build you a fire at any time."

On my way out to the woodpile at the back of the house I tapped lightly on my father's door, where, by a chance for which I blessed my lucky stars, he had taken Junior for one of his rambles the little chap loves.

"Father, dear," I whispered hurriedly when he had opened the door. "I am afraid Mother Graham is coming down with an attack of influenza, although she herself will not admit it. Will you put on Junior's things and take him out doors immediately? I don't want him to get into the room with her."

"Of course you don't," my father whispered back. "I'll take him out at once. But—my darling—be careful yourself!"

He was absurdly pleased as I sped down the hall that he had uttered no protest against my acting as nurse, as so many fathers would have done. That he understood I could and would do nothing else, and that he approved, I was as sure as I was that his heart was torn with anxiety for me.

With a basket of chips in one hand and an armful of light wood held in the other arm, I hurried back to the sitting room, and in a short time had a wonderful fire blazing in the grate. It made the room so warm that I felt most uncomfortable, but Mother Graham moved her chair close to the blaze, and bent over it with outstretched hands as if she could not get warmed even with its aid.

Uncle Wiggly Stories

By HOWARD R. GARDNER

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE SOUR GRAPES.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggly! Come here, quick! Quick!"

It was the voice of Susie Littlebell calling, and when the bunny rabbit gentleman heard it, as he sat on the stoop of his hollow stump bungalow one day, he made haste to jump down, leaping right over the railing.

"What is it, Susie? What's the matter?" cried Mr. Longears, as he saw his little niece jumping up and down in the grass.

"Oh, the Sammie, that funny brother of mine," Susie answered. "He and I were going to the store for mother, but he hopped off the path, and now he's down in that clump of grass. And he's making the funniest faces!"

"Making funny faces! What's he doing that for?" Uncle Wiggly wanted to know. "Is he playing some game?"

"I don't think so," Susie replied. "But you never can tell what Sammie is doing! Please come and see what's the matter, Uncle Wiggly. There he is, and he's—Oh, look at him!"

The bunny gentleman looked. There was Sammie, in a field not far from the hollow stump bungalow, and surely enough, the rabbit boy was making the queerest faces I wish you could have seen him!

No, on second thought, perhaps it is just as well you didn't. For he made such funny crooked, one-sided and lopsided faces that if you would have walked upside down if you had seen him.

"What game are you playing, Sammie?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"No game at all," answered the rabbit boy, and even his voice was all crooked and twisted like the figure 8.

"Something's the matter, I'm sure!" said Susie.

"Yes," answered Sammie, "something is. It's a sore of that clover grass over there, but—Oh dear!"

And Sammie had to stop talking while he made another funny face.

"I ate some of that," he went on after a bit, but it puckered me all over. That clover must be full of lemon juice, Uncle Wiggly!"

The bunny gentleman looked where Sammie had nibbled.

"That isn't clover, though it looks a little like it," said Mr. Longears. "You have been eating sheep sorrel. Sammie. Sheep sorrel is sour grass and there is another and stronger called horse sorrel."

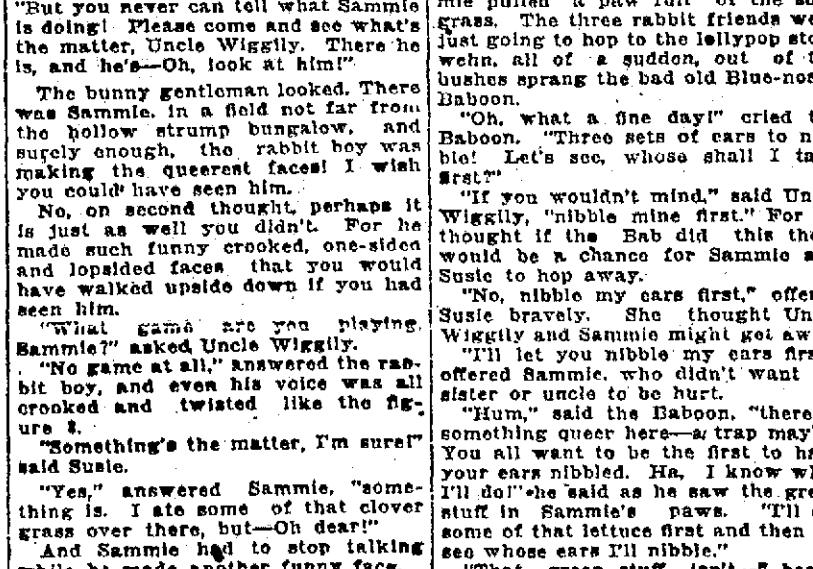

"Will it hurt him?" asked Susie.

"No, it only puckers up his mouth and lips as if he had eaten a lemon," Uncle Wiggly answered. "A little sheep sorrel is all right, Sammie, but don't eat too much."

"I won't any more," Sammie promised. "I'll just put a little to take home to mother. Maybe she can use the sour juice. It is lemonade instead of oranges."

"Yes, I think she can," Uncle Wiggly said, and he watched while Sammie

Cry on Geraldine's Shoulder

Listen, World!

I've been listening to some learned lecturers on how to achieve power in life, how to revitalize your souls and get the struggle hold on circumstance. There were a good many words in those lectures, and you came away with your mind all carbonated up with a sense of your own mysteriousness and potency. Which was all very well, but the alarm went off the next morning and you found yourself with the same old cold cream on your nose and same old warmed-over feeling about life in your heart.

Now, those lectures may be great dope—but I know a greater. You don't have to read books or learn gestures to use my dope—you don't have to wriggle yourself into any new cosmic contact with the Almighty. But you do have to get unburned. For mine is the dope of the open sky, of the long, long lights and the longer silences.

Has your soul gone stale? Have your dreams grown flabby? Does your grin on others slip? Do you lose yourself in open questionings? Then come with me and be healed! Not to some rocking chair under a wilted summer resort tree. But to the Eternal Earth. Out where the grit is still grit and

Jerry needs aid nothing to the following letter. It is the story of sin, and the inevitable payment for sin. It is a terrible story, starkly told that it may help others. She is not a soulless sinner, as she signs herself. No one of us is soulless. But her spirit has been so seared that at present she cannot feel anything but the ashes of bitterness. She needs no word of reproof. She is her own reproof. But she does need pity—and she does merit respect. In that she can say she will sin no more, even while life seems to have lost its last ray of hope. I do not think the light has all gone, little sister. Fight on—and Jerry is your friend:

Dear Geraldine:

I have been reading your columns for a long time and enjoy them very much.

I am going to tell you the story of my life. When I was 14, I like all other girls, was curious to know things of life. I asked my mother questions but she would never answer me, though my mother and father are both wonderful. Mother believed in keeping things secret, and here's what happened to me.

I went to another place to a girl chum's for a vacation, and it was quite a distance from where I lived. I was a good dancer and quite a bit older than me. I could dance, though I had never danced in public because mother was afraid I would lose my virtue. With my chum she said we could make good money and have wonderful times if we went to dances in a cafe, and so we went. All the summer we danced the night long. The life we led was bad. My folks never knew what we were doing and to this day they don't know. But when I was out I happened to think what if mother knew of this life, it would break her heart, so I left and never danced again.

I came home and led a life as I had always been used to at home. For two years I was as straight and good as any girl could be. I went to work, kept the very best of company and no one here ever knew what I had been. This spring I went on a vacation again and met a man whom I soon learned to love. He had a good name and I knew it, but I thought if people knew my life I wouldn't have a good name either, so I went and lived with him quietly.

Now, my folks came home and won't answer my letters. I know I could never love another like I love him, because I feel in my heart that he is all though I don't know it. He has a good name and I feel as if I can say a woman's faith is far greater than a man's.

I, too, am all for Kate Jensen, for I think I know how she feels and for that Mrs. McRoberts, it's her kind that when she is down they try to keep her there.

But I know now that I shall go and sin no more. And when my sisters are a little older I'll see that they don't do what I've done. And Jerry, dear, I'm only 18 years old now, but I feel as if I'd had experience enough of life to be 50 years old.

You need you, dear, always stay with us.

A SOULLESS SINNER."

no longer assail her, half the battle is won. Then she can sit down, think things over, and act intelligently. I think a sense of humor alone can help her at her particular stage in the game.

If I thought I could help any I should like to meet her. But I, too, have not yet won out, but am only winning, and I sincerely say that laughter is the best cure for all ills. As long as I took things too seriously I found myself just hopelessly vulnerable to love and all sorts of other evils. But once I learned to laugh at poverty, love, and the whole blamed drama of life, once I learned to laugh unstrainedly—then one can smile on these "passing" fancies, realize their momentary quality and remain untouched through temptation.

The courage, dear, and smile, and you'll find your batting average at virtue getting higher and your heart lighter and the burden of your past will just slip away. With sympathy.

A FRIEND.

A Suspicion

I have a large, No. 10 1/2 sized hunch that the following was written by "sister," or some friend, rather than by the "wife," to whom it is imputed. We have many reasonable specimens of frank, self-analysis in these columns, but no human wife, who possesses the following list of weaknesses, would ever go after herself! Thusly, Nay, nay, sister—Jerry wasn't born yesterday.

Dear Correspondent:

I have read many of your letters and I want some advice through your paper. Please tell me for my benefit and also for other young wives.

I married a widower, but I will not permit him to mention his first wife's name. I tell you everything she left and like to show off her things, but when I see her picture I go crazy. My husband has a secret, and I don't want her to come around except when I am alone. If my husband is here I make some excuse so she will go. Yet I never become tired of her. I remember when I see any of his people I want them to go. Friends tell me I am narrow and selfish, and that I will spoil the home. But my husband! But it seems the more exacting I am the more he loves me. I cannot see him give a nail to his people, but what I object and he obeys me. Tell me if he is in love with me that I can keep him always at my fingertips, or will I lose out if I do not do it? I love him more carefully than I love any of his people. He used to be very self-willed, but gradually I can see that will diminishing and he is like putty in my hands.

There is only one person I fear and that is his sister. She seems to love him so that she forgets her self entirely for him. When he is away from home I feel as if I must make all kinds of excuses so he cannot go near his people, and he obeys me. Will this last? That is what I fear.

MY HUSBAND'S WIFE.

That sort of a family rumorm is as common as mosquitoes in spring and I'll be delighted to tell you exactly what I think about it. I THINK IT'S THEIR OWN BUSINESS AND NO ONE ELSE'S. I believe that when a man marries he has cast in his lot with a new partner and has no right to think that any of his other relatives has the slightest right to meddle, interfere or expect anything from him save that which he voluntarily gives.

In this particular case, if the new wife suits him, that's all there is to it. I don't admire the tactics of the young wife and, generally speaking, I do not think that any of his other relatives have the right to meddle with them. It's their affair.

A Soul Tonic

Does your soul need a tonic? Are you trying to carry on without making headway? Then listen to this. If I can't spiritual "beat" iron and wine, I have never met with any.

Dear Jerry:

I am sorry for her who signs herself "Heartbroken." Unhappy wife! I have been through pretty much the same thing and am two years younger. I know how hard it all is. I have not conquered yet and feel I cannot offer any advice. I will help, and maybe should not be writing at all. But I have sympathy for her and have a feeling that it will come out all right in the end.

Tell her not to worry—to forget, to take herself in hand and adopt optimism or gentle irony. And when she gets the blues to laugh out loud, no matter how hollow the sound, and pretty soon life will look brighter, and when she arrives at the place where "Blues"

Chapter 35
Corporal Hears the Resolution

"WHEN shall we give our Professors party?" Alex asked when Reddy Quackenbush had finished writing the poetic place card for Corporal, the Roly Poly Pup.

"I believe," responded Reddy, "that you have a saying in the Right Side Up World, that 'there is no time like the present.' Why not give the party right away?"

"Dear me!" scolded the Duckess. "You seem to be in a terrible hurry! Can't you wait until I order the ice cream and lemonade and chocolate cakes?"

"The lady is right," said Corporal gallantly. "We must see about ordering the refreshments before we give the party."

"Thank you, Corporal," said the Duckess.

"Don't mention it, madam," barked Corporal with his most elegant bow. "I'm always glad to be of service to a lady Duckess."

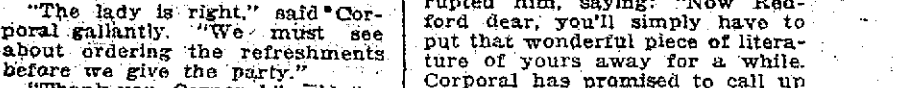

"That being the case," the Duckess returned, "you may help me by calling up the ice cream man and the bakery and ordering the things we need."

"Let me read him my resolution first," said Reddy; "he hasn't heard it yet, you know."

Everyone groaned at this prospect except Corporal, who said: "Go ahead!" barked that most heroic pup. "I've been through a dozen battles, not counting the hatchet-slash skirmish that won me my wound stripes, so I don't mind a mere resolution will hurt me."

Reddy had already taken the copy of his resolution from his pocket, and while the Duckess and the others passed the time as best they could, Reddy read the document to the Roly Poly Pup.

Barred he had finished, Corporal barked his applause, and Reddy, who naturally thought the rest of the world was as interested in the resolution as he, its author, was, commenced to read it over again. But the Duckess interrupted him, saying: "Now Reddy, dear, you'll simply have to put that wonderful piece of literature of yours away for a while. Corporal has promised to call up about the ice cream and lemonade and chocolate cakes."

Reddy read the Resolution

Obediently, though with reluctance, Reddy put his resolution back into his pocket, while Corporal, with the aid of the Ginger-snap Phone, called up to order the good things to eat and drink.

"Reddy certainly does enjoy reading his resolution," observed Alex aside to the Duckess.

"Yes, the poor dear is all wrapped up in it," returned the Duckess. "I wonder what Josiah Jingle-Jangle has to say about that sort of thing?"

Together they looked through Reddy's pocket volume of verses, and found the following poem:

There was a little resolution
Whose praise knew constant diminution,
For almost all who read it said:
"It's unconvincing, flat and dead."

Yes, I considered it a wonder,
Surcharged with triple thrills and thunder,
Why did I thus a marvel utter?
The answer's this: 'Twas I who wrote it!

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE HAPPY MAN.

Roam the whole world over and search it through and through,
And the only happy man you'll find is the man with work to do!
The man who cares to battle, the man with dreams to win,
Is the one who wakes to gladness when the dawn comes streaking in.

You may dream your dreams of leisure, you may envy idle men,
But it hurts to know that duty will never call again,
And the days grow long and dreary, though the skies above are blue,
To the man who know no burden and has no task to do.

It is good to know life needs us, it is good to walk with care,
It is good to toil for drosses for our little ones to wear,
And though we prate of resting when the gold we crave is won,
The saddest men around us are those whose work is done.

There is no sweet contentment in being free from care,
The stout hearts are the gladdest by the burdens they must bear;
And though we dream of resting when all our tasks are through,
When that day comes, we'll envy the man with work to do.

SATURDAY, JULY 23

Joseph S. Fabens, who was a United States consul and who won some fame by writing "The Last Cigar," was born July 23, 1821. The day does not offer many opportunities but those who may remember "Dunn Browne," soldier, who was killed in the Battle of the Wilderness and whose writings were popular, might be interested to know that he was born on this day in 1828. His real name was Samuel Fiske. The Peabody statue was unveiled in New York in '69 and the Proteus was wrecked in Kane Sea, Arctic ocean, in 1883. Americans took Buzancy in 1918.

DR. ABNER CHOSEN PASTOR ST. JOHN'S BAPTIST CHURCH

At a special business meeting of the congregation of St. John's Baptist church, held on Wednesday, Rev. Benjamin P. Abner, recently of Baltimore, Md., was elected pastor. Dr. Abner comes highly recommended by the brotherhood of the Baptist church in America. It is stated.

Dr. Abner will preach tomorrow at both the morning and evening services, which are held at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., and will lead the midweek prayer service, which meets at 8 o'clock, Wednesday night. He will also take part in the meeting of the Oakland Literary Society Friday night at 8 o'clock.

German's "Unusual Thirst" Wins Pardon

BERLIN, July 23.—In view of what was called his "unusual thirst," August Marowski, a sailor, who had been sentenced to five months in all-ford rinking ten cases of champagne belonging to a tenant, was pardoned by the high court today. He had consumed the ten cases in nine days.

Seemingly to vindicate the judgment of the court, Marowski entered the nearest cafe immediately after he was released to slack his thirst.

City Woodyard Styled Bank for Unemployed

"The survival of the fittest" is an old worn-out adage and does not apply to present day conditions; co-operative groups are the ones that survive and prosper today. W. S. Goodrich, superintendent of the municipal woodyard, told members of the Optimists' Club at their luncheon yesterday in a downtown cafe.

Goodrich, who spoke on "Unemployment," presented a survey of the country's labor situation, gave a brief history of the woodyard, telling of its origin, and what it has accomplished, and declared that the man unable to find work and dependent upon municipal support in the majority of cases was not the "bum" or "shirker," as often characterized.

"The Oakland municipal woodyard," said Goodrich, "plays the same part to a certain class of people that a bank or loan agency does to others. When there is a period of depression you business men go to a bank or credit house and borrow money. You use this money to tide you over the financial depression until things readjust themselves. Then you pay the money back with interest."

NOTHING GIVEN FREE.
"That is exactly the same way a woodyard works out for a certain class of men. It enables them to keep alive and be self-supporting until they can find work. We give nothing free. A man pays for his lodging and food by work, practically the same way a banker would pay interest on money he had borrowed. The men who come to the woodyard are not tramps or bums in a legitimate sense. They are men who want employment, but are unable to find it. This is illustrated very clearly by the fact that in bad years—by that I mean when there is a country-wide depression—we have more men than in better times. A community must furnish a man means of making a minimum existence."

"Why do men get in need of temporary help? We have found by study that there is some period in every man's life when he falls below the self-supporting line. This period may or may not last for a great length of time. It depends to some extent upon the individual, and also to some extent upon the condition of affairs."

WORK DONE BY MEN.
Goodrich gave a brief history of the woodyard, and told what was organized, how an appropriation was secured, and what it has accomplished. Roughly speaking, he said that it cost approximately $12,000 a year to keep it in operation and that about $500 of this was furnished by the city. Since the building was first erected, shortly after it was established in 1919 with A. Jonas as the first head, no money has gone for the upkeep of the building, including repairs. This work is done to a large extent by the men, he said.

He declared that after it was first established before the present building had been built and plans for it were being made, it was decided to have the men staying there dig the foundation as a means of earning their keep. This would do away with the employment of men for that work. This was impossible, he declared, because of the objections of the unions who called a teamster's strike so that the dirt excavated could not be hauled away.

Goodrich said that 57,000 meals were served to men during 1919; in 1918 he said they served 13,000; in 1920, 17,033, and for the first six months of 1921, 37,000. Seven thousand meals of the total for 1920 were served during the last three months of that year, he said.

Sea Captain Secures Soviet Fur Rights

NOME, Alaska, July 23.—(Delayed.)—Captain Sigurd K. Gudmundson, master of the American schooner Polar Bear, who returned from an exploring trip to Siberia on the schooner Belinda, announced today that he had secured from Soviet officials fur trading concessions for the entire Kolyva district and for the state of Jakutsk, Siberia. The concessions were granted in the name of the Russian central Soviet government of Omsk.

In response to the request of the Soviet government at Anadyr, the Polar Bear carried supplies to Kolyva, which had been suffering from famine. The Bear was the first vessel to reach Kolyva in four years.

Rice Growers' Offer Refused by Merritt

Ralph R. Merritt of Berkeley, former controller of the University of California, has declined the presidency of the Pacific Rice Growers' association, a place offered him a week ago by a special committee. The terms of the offer are said to have been among the most unusual on record. Merritt is said to have refused the offer because the price of the offer was said to be doubled on the second year. Rice growers are aiming to increase the price of rice and had selected Merritt as the man to head the movement.

More Bay Span Data Needed by Engineers

Before the plans for a bridge across the bay are presented to the War Department for approval, John V. Davies and Ralph Modjeski, eastern experts, may return to California to make a more extensive survey of the situation. This was given out after the experts had written that they felt they should be supplied with more information before they were called upon to answer the questions that the War Department would put them to soundings and borings will be made, it is believed, and a careful engineering study made on the ground.

Presbyterian Synod Success

By R. H. RYDER.

That this year's meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of California is one of the most significant events in the history of the church in this state is the thought expressed by a number of the prominent churchmen who are attending the convention at Berkeley. Never before has so much interest centered around the annual meeting, nor is that interest confined entirely to members of the Presbyterian church. Members of other denominations, attracted by the extensive program in which every conceivable subject of interest to religious organizations is being considered, are flocking to the meetings daily.

One of the causes of this interest, it is stated, is the unique method which those who planned the convention program have adopted for the regular routine of business. The convention meets as a whole only during the evening. From 10:30 to 12:30 each morning delegates have been asked to assemble in the various rooms, there to listen to addresses on various subjects of interest to the church, delivered by national authorities.

Another feature of this year's synod is that a rule has been adopted absolutely prohibiting the long drawn out speechmaking that has so often failed to attract the average person to a convention. Twenty-five minutes are allowed in which to speak on any subject, and the remaining time during the forty-five minute period is being used for discussion of the subject presented.

Movies for Churches

Moving pictures now recognized as one of the most accurate reproductions of any event, and as such, treasured as a means of reviving or proving events that have passed and have been partially forgotten, will be used by some of the churches of the Eastbay on every occasion in the future, when the church desires to bring back, for the moment, some important happening in church history. Perhaps it will be to draw a comparison between the size of the congregations of the past and present, or it may be someone will desire to note the change in physical features that the years have brought. In any case it will be a simple matter to revive the past.

Through the courtesy of The Oakland Tribune-T. & D. News service, nearly two thousand feet of moving pictures, taken during the past year, will be distributed to the fourteen churches whose congregations were filmed by the photographer. One of the pictures merely show the congregation of the church filing out after a church service, but the greater number are of particular events, which have already been chronicled in the Tribune-T. & D. News service. The fourteen churches to which pictures will be distributed are as follows:

HEILMAN AND HORNSBY ARE LEADING HITTERS IN MAJORS

STANFORD FOOTBALL COACH WILL HAVE HARD JOB FILLING SHOES OF LAST YEAR'S STARS

TY COBB IS BATTLING HIS WAY TOWARD TOP IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

But Harry Heilmann Is Still Some Distance in Lead; Cutshaw Second in National.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Roger Hornsby is starting in a new role in the National League this week, according to averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday. The St. Louis star is sharing honors with Risch of New York in the run scoring department, each having registered 74 tallies for his club.

The cardinal guardian of the keystone sack, although dropping two points in his batting, continued to head the players who have participated in 55 or more games, his average being .418. Hornsby has cracked out 140 hits for a total of 224 bases. His hits include 25 doubles, 13 triples and 11 homers.

He is tied for third place with McHenry, a teammate, for circuit drive honors, which rests with George Kelly of the New York Giants, who tops the list with 13, having failed to add to his mark of a week ago.

Irish Meusel, the slugging Philadelphia outfielder, is on the Giant slugging heels, however, with an even dozen for the week.

George Cutshaw of the Pirates added to his mark of a week ago for the position of runner-up to Hornsby, by batting .386. Pep Young of the New Yorks moved up from fifth to third position with an average of .356.

Prich, in addition to being tied with the St. Louis Cardinals for scoring honors, has jumped out in front of Max Carey of Pittsburgh for the base stealing, leading with a total of 28. Carey has 23.

Other leading batters: Grimes (Chicago), .352; Williams (Philadelphia), .352; Mann (St. Louis), .350; Marvyn (Pittsburgh), .348; Fournier (St. Louis), .347; Johnston (Brooklyn), .339; Digbee (Pittsburgh), .330.

Cobb Makes Big Gain On Tris Speaker in A. L.

Ty Cobb, the Detroit pilot, signified his return to the game by batting his closest rival, Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, during the past week, according to American league averages released today. Although the Georgia peach fell below his mark of a week ago, he pulled away from the leader of the world's champions, who slumped 16 points in his hitting. Cobb lost only four points and has an average of .300. Speaker is hitting .284.

Harry Heilmann, the slugging Pittsburgher, lost 18 points, but continues to top the leader by a wide margin, his average being .423.

Eddie Rupp brought his season's string of home runs to 36. In addition to the Yankee slugger, with his 110 hits, has boosted his total base record to 256 bases, which, with his home runs include 24 doubles and six triples. Rupp continued to be the best run getter in the league, having registered 85 times for his club.

Harris of Washington took the lead from George Sisler, the St. Louis star, for stolen base honors, having pilfered two during the week, while the St. Louis star failed to add to his string of 16. Harris' mark is 17.

Other leading batters: Tobin (St. Louis), .378; Severed (St. Louis), .367; Wynn (St. Louis), .366; Vach (New York), .360; Veach (Detroit), .350; Collins (Chicago), .347; Sisler (St. Louis), .346; Charles (St. Louis), .345; Johnston (Cleveland), .335; Stephenson (Cleveland), .338.

Olympic-L. A. A. C. Boxing Tourney Is Put Over a Week

The inter-city club boxing tournament between the Los Angeles Athletic Club and the San Francisco Olympic Club will be held at the latter club's gymnasium on August 1, instead of August 10 as originally scheduled. De Witt Van Court, of the southern club notified the Olympic club that he was willing to bring through on the original date set, but that a week's postponement would suit him better. There is an epidemic of flu and general good feeling between the boxing elements of both clubs, and the postponement suggestion is always met half way by both organizations. The program consists of nine bouts at different weights over the four-round route and to fill out the program the Olympic club is adding six more bouts between the next West Olympic men.

Suzanne Lenglan May Delay Her Trip

NEW YORK, July 23.—Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association said today they had received no official information that Miss Suzanne Lenglan, French tennis queen, had delayed her departure until July 26. She was originally scheduled to sail today. Six exhibition matches had been arranged for her, starting with her debut at Greenwich August 1. Air plans will be changed if she does not sail today.

Boxing Notes

BOXERS WHO MAKE GOOD. Boxers who make good in Australia are not necessarily champions. Billy Shado, Joe Symonds, Jamito, Craigh, and many others could not even at the longest stretch of imagination be called champions, yet they have made good and made money, which counts for much in this mercenary world. The type of men Australian promoters need most are boxers who can fight hard and go 20 rounds. Skill, punch and durability go for much in the Antipodes. Symonds could not get a fight in England because they like the tip-tap style of boxing, all skill and no slog, kind of stuff. In Australia a man has to be a powerful fighting machine. Men who hang on and stall get the bird very early, but men who will stand toe to toe and "take a licking" as the Australians put it, can be sure of a big heap of kale, Jamito, Symonds, Shado, Craigh, Dencia, and others who have come here who could fight, made plenty of money. They had to fight and work hard to get it, but there is no "easy street" in the world today, not even for pigs, and men who strive earn in this island continent. Stadiums will have a crop of six houses running very shortly. The Sydney stadium with its increased accommodations will house over 20,000 fans, the Melbourne house seats 15,000 and two of the Sydney houses (Hippodrome and Olympia) seat nearly 10,000 each. The same applies to the Brisbane stadium and the Melbourne pavilion.

GODFREY STOPS PATTERSON. At the Sydney stadium on Saturday night, June 25, Sid Godfrey, Sydney stopped the colored lightweight, Leo Patterson, of St. Louis, U. S. A. in the first minute of the second round. Fans were very disappointed at his poor showing. Nearly 10,000 saw the contest.

STALLARD, also of Cambridge, and a famous mile runner, who has run in this country before as a member of the victorious British relay team, photographed while training in the Harvard stadium, Cambridge, Mass. Stallard developed a lame foot, but it is hoped he will recover in time to compete. (Right) L. F. PARTRIDGE of the Oxford-Cambridge team practicing the hurdle jump.

Kansas City Boy Springs Surprise On Del Monte Links

DEL MONTE, July 23.—The victory of Morton Benedict of Kansas City over Don Davin of San Diego in the California Junior golf tournament was the surprise of yesterday's play in the semi-finals. The score was 4 to 2.

Bobby Ross of Los Angeles medaled in 32 and defeated Fred Ehrman 6 to 5. Ashton Stanley of Del Monte also had an 82 and defeated R. D. Sver Jr. of San Jose by 9 to 8. Marshall H. Jones of Del Monte defeated D. S. Dorn of San Francisco, 6 to 1.

Great Crowd Welcomes Georges Upon Arrival

PARIS, July 23.—Georges Carpentier, apparently more than ever the idol of the French sporting public because of his gallant attempt at the world's heavyweight championship, was given a hero's reception upon his arrival in Paris today from the United States.

The St. Lazare railway station was crowded with his admirers and as Carpentier appeared on the platform he was greeted by a storm of applause. He was escorted to the hotel by a large crowd of fans.

Meanwhile the crowd which had waited outside the station, not knowing their favorite had made his exit through another than the main door, pushed and jammed about the building for nearly half an hour after his departure, dispersing only when the police force had been called out.

TAGGING THE BASES

Griggs, Los Angeles first baseman, hit his first home run in the fourth and the Angels made five runs in the fifth, winning from Seattle 6 to 3.

Pitcher Roy Crumpler of San Francisco hit his first home run in the fourth and the Giants won from the Athletics 5 to 0.

Carpentier Tells Folks At Home That Dempsey Is Best

HAVRE, July 23.—Georges Carpentier arrived here last night from New York and will spend several weeks in France before again visiting the United States next fall.

In an interview shortly after he landed, Carpentier declared that he considered the late Jack Dempsey, world heavyweight boxing champion, unquestionably the best fighter of the present day. He said he thought Dempsey's hands for four or five years.

DEADLOCK BETWEEN ATHLETES OF AMERICA AND ENGLAND DOOMED

Oxford-Cambridge and Yale-Harvard Teams Have Two Wins to Credit As They Meet.

BOSTON, July 23.—Track and field athletes of Harvard and Yale and Oxford and Cambridge may break a deadlock in their international series when they clash in the Harvard Stadium today.

The meet will be the fifth staged between the international rivals. Oxford and Cambridge won the first set of games held at the Queen's Club, Kensington, England, in 1899, 5 events to 4, first places only counting. Harvard and Yale won the second meet, held at the famous Berkeley field in New York City, September 25, 1901. The score was 6 events to 3. The Americans were victors in 1904 when they defeated the English collegians at the Queens Club, again by a score of 6 to 3. In 1911, when the games were held for the third time at the Queens Club grounds, Oxford and Cambridge proved the score by winning 5 to 4.

Harvard and Yale teams lead in the number of points scored, 20 to 16, the Englishmen on both occasions having pointed out the winners of the Crimson and the Blue, but the individual performances of the Britons in previous meets have surpassed those of the Americans, the records show. Harvard athletes have established series records for two events, the hurdles and the 100-yard dash and Yale only one, the high jump, while Oxford has made the best marks in three events, the two-mile run, the hammer throw and the broad jump and Cambridge leads in four events, the 440-yard run, the half-mile, one-mile and three-mile races. The three-mile has been run only once in the series, in 1899, when Rev. H. W. Workman of Cambridge was the victor.

EXPECT NEW RECORDS TO BE ESTABLISHED

College track men have made fast strides since the last meet of the series in 1911 and new series records may be expected to topple when assaulted by stars the caliber of Tom Campbell, Yale half-mile; B. D. G. Rudd, Oxford's great middle distance runner, and E. D. Gourdin, Harvard's crack broad jumper.

EVENT	HOLDER	PLACE	DATE	TIME
100-yard dash	W. A. Schick (H)	Queen's Club	1904	9 4-5
120-yard hurdles	P. S. Fox (H)	Queen's Club	1899	15 2-8
120-yard hurdles	J. H. Converse (H)	New York	1901	15 2-5

Half-mile run	H. W. Workman (C)	New York	1901	1:55 2-8
One-mile run	H. W. Gresson (C)	Queen's Club	1904	4:21 1-8
Two-mile run	E. Gowan Taylor (O)	Queen's Club	1911	9:29 1-5
Three-mile run	H. W. Workman (C)	Queen's Club	1899	15:24 2-5
Hammer throw	G. F. Purnam (O)	Queen's Club	1911	151 ft. 5
Broad jump	C. C. Yacoff (O)	Queen's Club	1899	21 feet
High jump	J. S. Spraker (Y)	New York	1901	6 ft. 1 1/2

Run only one year.

The winning college in each event in former meets follows:

EVENT	1899	1901	1904	1911
100-yard dash	Harvard	Yale	Harvard	Cambridge
120-yard hurdles	Harvard	Harvard	Yale	Yale
440-yard run	Cambridge	Harvard	Harvard	Cambridge
Half-mile run	Cambridge	Cambridge	Oxford	Harvard
Mile run	Cambridge	Cambridge	Cambridge	Cambridge
Two-mile	Cambridge	Cambridge	Cambridge	Cambridge
Three-mile	Cambridge	Cambridge	Cambridge	Cambridge
Hammer throw	Harvard	Harvard	Yale	Oxford
Broad jump	Oxford	Yale	Yale	Yale
High jump	Harvard	Yale	Yale	Yale

First place recapitulation:

Cambridge 11, Harvard 10, Yale 10, Oxford 4.

Gene Van Gent, Card's Coach, Has Tough Job

Righter and Templeton Are Among Last Year's Stars Who Are Missing.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, July 23.—With Gene Van Gent chosen as the new Stanford football coach, and the new Stanford Stadium well on the road to completion, Stanford supporters are already beginning to speculate on the chance of a winning football eleven this fall.

The holes in the line-up caused by the loss of Dick Templeton, "Swee" Righter, Fred Adams and Bob Pelouse, of the 1920 eleven, will be hard to fill up.

The loss of Templeton from the backfield should be made up by the work of Captain Jack Patrick and Art Wilcox. Both men showed improvement in their kicking last year. Stan Adams will be back to hold down one of the halfback positions. Doggie, a Texas man, will be a backup position also. Morris Kirksey, the sprinter, will also be a candidate for a backfield job the event for the last two years, will defend his title.

British Team Banks on Rudd For Victory

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 23.—College youth of England and America matched speed and strength in games of track and field at the fifth international meeting between combined athletic teams of Oxford and Cambridge, opposing Harvard and Yale, and the score of the series stood a tie. Like the four previous international meetings, scoring was on first places only, except in cases of a tie when second places were to be checked. There were ten events, without trial heats or preliminary efforts.

The shot put was contested for the first time at these games. Only one dash, the 100 yards and one hurdle, 120 yards, over the high barriers were arranged.

Thirty-two Enter In Ten-Mile Swim

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—Thirty-two of the best swimmers of the country, one from Brazil and one from Canada, were entered in the ten-mile international championship swim today in the Delaware river, from this city to the town of Pottsville. Eugene Bullard, of the Illinois Athletic Club, winner of the event for the last two years, will defend his title.

Maybe They'll Have to Look Under Pillows

CHICAGO, July 23.—A frantic search is on today for the immunity waivers supposed to have been signed by Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams and Joe Jackson, three of the former White Sox ball players, who are on trial for conspiracy to throw the 1919 world's series to Cincinnati. When they made their alleged confessions before the grand jury, which indicted them, The waivers are vital, as Judge Hugo Friend has ruled that the confessions may be admitted as evidence if it can be established they were offered voluntarily.

In an attempt to prove the confessions voluntary, Harvey L. Replogie, former assistant state's attorney, who conducted the investigation before the grand jury, was called as a witness. Replogie testified that the confessions were made without promise of immunity.

It was reported also today that the copies of the confessions said to have been made by the players were missing, but this could not be confirmed.

The waivers, attorneys claim, were last seen in the files of the state's attorney's office. It is believed that they were stolen.

Judge Friend is expected to make a final ruling on Monday as to the admission of the confessions as evidence. He already has tentatively ruled that the confessions, if admitted, will apply only to those players making the statements.

WILLIS DAVIS MAKES BIG HIT IN THE EAST

By JACK VEJOICK, International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Watch Willis Davis. Taste this young man's name in your hat as a coming national singles and Davis cup tennis star.

These tips are going the rounds of devotees of tennis today and with Davis in the east and big tennis fixtures coming on ances they will be worth remembering.

San Francisco has contributed Davis to tennis. He comes from the native heat of three former American national champions—Maurice McLoughlin, K. Lindley Murray and William M. Johnston—all sons of California. And he comes highly respected for his prowess on the courts.

Tall, youthful, almost as lanky as Bill Tilden and constantly improving his style of play, Davis will beat watching. As far back as 1916 he was number eight in the national ranking. Then came the war and Davis went into service. In 1918 he was not ranked but the following year he was thirteenth in the list and last year he was fifth among the nation's ranking players.

In this section of the country they allude to Davis now as the Tilden of the west. His slashing service and the speed and accuracy of his smashes and volleys easily remind those of the international champion. He has come east with plenty of hard practice under his belt and may win a place on the Davis cup team that will defend the trophy at Forest Hills next fall.

AL SOMMERS DEFEATED.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 23.—Gordon McKay of Ogden, Utah, was given the decision over Al Sommers, of Spokane, Wash., last night at the Lagoon Arena after twelve rounds of fighting. McKay knocked Sommers down twice. The boxers are middleweights.

IN SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Robert T. Small says in an article in tomorrow's TRIBUNE that the public will be excited from the meetings of the disarmament conference at Washington and the sessions will be held behind closed doors. He says, also, that the nations that have accepted the invitation to participate in the party will look to the United States for guidance.

SID ROSS IS RELEASED.

BEAUMONT, Tex., July 23.—Sid Ross, a pitcher purchased early in the season by the local club of the Texas League from the Portland club, was unconditionally released today.

Straight to the Mark

If you are aiming at success

you should not hesitate to go into business merely because you have to start on a small scale. What if you do have to begin on a "shoe-string"? Some of the big department stores of Oakland were hardly more than fair-sized dry goods emporiums twenty years ago. Many a large industry in the United States started within the last ten or fifteen years in some shed or basement.

If a man chooses a business that he likes and understands, if he locates in a prosperous growing community, and if he manages his business intelligently, his chance for success is practically unlimited.

You can supply the intelligent management; the Eastbay cities form a very prosperous growing community; and for a real opportunity in the kind of business you like and understand just look in the Classified Columns today and Wednesday under

BUSINESS CHANCES.

If you are especially interested in the hotel, apartment or lodging-house business look under

THE BUILDING SITUATION.

Figures compiled by the Washington Herald economist, and covering the year up to July 4, cast some light on the building material situation in the United States. Briefly these figures show, for the country generally, there has been a marked drop in the cost of material. There may be a few localities where the exception to the general rule prevails, but regarding this district there is no reason for believing this is the case. It is also interesting to note that the revival of building activities continues to gain force and a resumption of building on an active scale is indicated. The season has been running about twenty percent behind the spring of 1920 until May when building as indicated by permits showed a gain of about 6 percent over May of last year. Progress has been steadily upward this spring in contrast to the spurt in April a year ago which was followed by a larger recession. This steady progress when considered together with the fact that prices of materials are on a more settled basis leads to the conclusion that the growth in activity is healthy and will be maintained.

The total for the cities outside of New York showed a decrease in May from $98,612,000 in 1920 to $82,715,000 in 1921. In Chicago and Philadelphia there were large decreases as compared with the same month a year ago. There is nothing to indicate any very great increase in building activity in the open country or in small cities. Most of the cities in agricultural regions have shown a decrease compared with a year ago which serves as an indication of conditions among smaller places to some extent.

These building statistics are stated in terms of values and this must be considered in making comparisons. The lower amounts stated in dollars may in many cases actually represent a larger actual operation than that involved a year ago when prices were higher. Consequently the gain is really larger in volume than those figures would indicate.

The cost price decline is shown by the figures of the cost of steel and lumber. The prices of steel involved in building are as follows:

	Steel bars per 100 lbs.	Wire nails per 100 lbs.	Beams per 100 lbs.
Jan. 1920	$2.75	$4.50	$2.45
June 1920	3.50	4.00	3.10
Jan. 1921	2.35	3.25	2.45
June 1921	2.10	3.00	2.20

In each line the price on June 1, 1920, is about 50 percent less than a year ago. The iron and steel business is running at only about 55 percent of capacity and further reductions may be marked off before the volume of business increases to any extent.

Taking the building materials record of the Bureau of Labor Statistics and comparing prices for March, 1920, with March, 1921, the following is shown:

	1920	1921
Brick, per 1,000	$25.00	$16.25
Cement, Portland, per bbl.	1.65	1.70
Lime, per bbl.	3.87	4.80
Glass, window, 50 sq. ft.	6.55	6.75
Lath, per 1,000	17.00	8.75
Double fir, No. 1, per 1,000	37.50	12.50
Hamlock	58.00	35.50
Oak, white	155.00	61.00
Pine, yellow	104.73	31.92
Shingles, red cedar	6.08	2.40
Wire Nails	4.10	3.12
Lead, white	15	13
Lansed Oil	1.80	.65
Tar-pentine	2.23	.58

Taken as a group, building material prices were represented by the index number 208 in March, 1921, against 325 in March, 1920, and 308 for the whole year 1920. Several of the building materials are back to 1918 levels and a few to 1917 prices. The progress of building should not long be delayed because of the cost of materials. Labor for building is also more plentiful and wage levels are lower.

All these indications point toward a steady recovery of building operations during the summer particularly in those localities where there has been a decided shortage of construction for two or three years. The only things which may hold back a building boom are a foolish effort to maintain unreasonably high prices of material and labor troubles.

SCANDAL IN ILLINOIS.

Governor Len Small and Lieutenant-Governor Fred E. Sterling of Illinois have been indicted on four counts by a grand jury on charges of misappropriation of public funds. The amounts involved in the alleged illegal transactions total about $3,500,000. This episode seems to be only the beginning of a State scandal that will throw its echoes far and wide and into national circles at Washington.

The accused Governor denies that any ground for the indictments exists and that it is all the fruit of a plot against him by his political adversaries. This is the usual tenor of denials under such circumstances. Governor Small was the choice and largely the political creature of Mayor Thompson of Chicago. He was elected to the governorship by the Chicago vote and the election in that city was characterized by that gang violence which has so often been employed in Chicago.

It is to the credit of the United States that only a few governors have ever been charged with criminal misdoing. Many have harmed their State through their ignorance and attachment to vicious political cliques and false governmental theories, but few have committed crimes for personal pecuniary gain. If Illinois is zealous in defense of her good name she will speedily clean up the present scandal.

OLD-TIMERS NOT SO BAD.

Mr. Irwin Shrewsbury Cobb of Paducah, Kentucky, formerly a very satisfactory newspaper reporter, but now a journalist, has written, notwithstanding his "professional" advancement, an excellent little volume with the title, "A Plea for Old Cap Collier." This is really a valuable book, for it is a retrospection of a man of mature years in which he reviews the experiences of his childhood. This is always helpful, if the memory is reliable and the heart honest.

Old Cap Collier had several companions in Cobb's childhood. There were Deadwood Dick, Nick Carter and half a dozen others of a select company. Their exploits were told in small paper bound volumes which sold, as a rule, for five cents. As soon as a boy learned to read smoothly and understandingly he displayed a strong hankering for these tales, and at the same time the inhibitions of stern, but well-meaning parents, compelled him to carry out his indulgence in secrecy. Beyond any doubt more five-cent novels have been hidden away in hay loft, woody retreat and hill-top rendezvous than any other article of human use.

After thirty-five years Mr. Cobb comes forward with a defense of old Cap Collier and his fellow entertainers of young American life. He finds they were not bad at all. When they had a thing to say or a thing to do they went about the task in a forthright manner. Their chroniclers wrote to the point and gave plenty of action, but in simple, wholesome doses. The heroes of these five-centers, Mr. Cobb recalls, were straight, honest men, gentlemen to their finger tips, always courteous to women and incapable of a wrong deed; their heroines were pluperfect, adorable; their villains most villainous and impressive examples to the youth who devoured the tales.

And what was not in the old five-centers of a generation ago, which parents banned from the household, where was kept an oak paddle or a hickory switch for the kid who was caught reading or possessing one. There was no coarse, vulgar or profane language—nothing stronger than "curses on you!" There were no "triangles," no sex jags, no affinity scandals, no psychic lures or brain storms to excuse violations of moral laws. None of these things that seem to be necessary habiliments of the present-day "best literature."

Mr. Cobb's wholesome essay will bring a wistful regret to the men and women who were "trained" children in his childhood days. And they will agree with him that it would be far better to have Deadwood Dick, Nick Carter and Old Cap Collier on the book shelf of the children of today than the nonsense, sex stuff and moral and spiritual anesthetics now provided for the youthful reader without objection or reprimand.

President Lowell of Harvard advises, "Think for yourself." That is good advice, but it should also be interpreted as a restriction. There are altogether too many people trying to do all the thinking for others.

It is encouraging to note that the English-Irish conference has not yet reached that stage of hopelessness at which it is thought best to seek counsel of Colonel Hailey.

IMMIGRATION MUDDLE.

Ever since the Emergency Immigration Law came into effect we have been treated to an almost continuous spectacle of ships in New York harbor turned into detention pens for passengers who have come into conflict with the famous quotas established in the law. It is necessary to distinguish, however, between the holding up of thousands of would-be immigrants, which had to be ended by the injection of reason and humanity into the administration of the law, and the situation of the last few days when official stupidity apparently has reinforced the basic stupidity of the law and turned it against former residents of the United States or transients who obviously do not come under the head of immigrants. Only a super-heated conception of duty on the part of officials here can explain the fact that has been staged this week in the first and second cabin saloons. Muddle is almost unavoidable under the emergency law. The act is too old and too hazy, but it presupposes for its adequate functioning an administrative machinery that would take longer than that to establish. It is plain that if we are not to have a constant process of "quota" congestion at this end, the flow of immigration must be regulated in Europe. It presupposes intelligent inspection at our consular agencies abroad and at embarkation points. At best the system could not be expected to function perfectly. Under present conditions it is ended by the act rushed into force almost without notice, the regulation of immigration from the other side either has not been attempted or has broken down. The Emergency Immigration Law is behaving very much like other emergency remedies for our present ills which have been sprung upon the market in response to a wild sentiment that something must be done, though we didn't know exactly what. New York Evening Post.

NOTES and COMMENT

There is sure to be a thought of the acres of cantaloupes that are lying in the fields at Turlock, getting perfectly ripe, while a squabble that shakes the nation goes on over the hands who were to harvest them. For the Turlock cantaloupe question is a variant of the Japanese question, and may not be circumscribed by the boundaries of a melon district.

How they are fussing in Congress is illustrated by the adoption of the Frear amendment to the tariff bill. It strikes out the provision which would make possible an embargo for three years on dyes. The amendment was debated a week, final passage being realized by the close vote of 203 to 193. In the meantime, a number of real matters remained in abeyance.

Some of the examples of depopulated mining towns that have been told are eclipsed by the "Instance of Corum." That was a city of 2000, and now there are just two inhabitants left. But former sites related to gold and silver mining communities, and the towns were abandoned because the mines had been worked out. Not so Corum. The decline in the price of copper has made its recovery unprofitable, and well equipped mines and machinery are abandoned in consequence.

"Britain to keep navy at par." That far-reaching policy seems to consider the world concludes to arrange a lasting peace as well enough, but proposes to keep its warships on a footing that will be equal to possible emergencies, just the same.

Now Rio Janeiro is exhibiting a Blue Sunday streak. A law has been enacted there which prohibits newspaper work between 8 o'clock Sunday mornings and 8 o'clock Monday mornings. The law is not understood as though he had hit the intended mark. The law is not as amiable in this instance as it is often when it takes account of the intent as mitigating the deed.

This continent is not enjoying all the fun. The cable brings the news that the Greeks have taken a city in Asia Minor, and affairs elsewhere give some promise of revivifying the war spirit in Europe. Such things as are reported in this vicinity do not by any means monopolize the earth's turbulent news.

The reports of those returned from abroad, and who studied the situation and are able to judge, agree that the Germans are the one people who have gone earnestly to work. Other peoples are squabbling among themselves or depending on reparation money to do that which should be attained by work.

Among the news items is one which conveys the information that "soya bean cheese is passed by Mitchell." The elucidation is that soya bean cheese was suspected of containing alcohol, but the prohibition director tested it and decided that the kick was luniburgic and not alcoholic.

While they are squabbling at Turlock over melon pickers and the crop is not being cracked news comes that one hundred and fifty million cantaloupes have been and are being successfully shipped from Imperial. Not every melon growing community is stopping to fuss.

Most wives, observes the Reading Searchlight, are more or less doubtful after a year of marriage, about their judgment in picking out a husband.

Beware of men coming under the alluring cloak of liberty, for liberty, most wonderful of boons, has been used as a cloak for every sort of evil that human society has been heir to. ## CALIFORNIA'S ENCHANTED ISLANDS.

Nine American islands off the coast of California. A number of them inhabited, and some important to mariners, because of the light-houses, and telegraphic stations, and because they are claimed by Mexico, upon them, and despatches from Mexico City. These islands are the subject of the following bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters:

"The climate of the Southern California mainland has acquired a world-wide reputation because of its mildness and equability; but the climate of the islands lying off its coast is not so pleasant. The islands are surrounded by the blue Pacific under a semitropical sun, but fanned by ocean breezes, they are a land of perpetual summer, and can be imagined to merit the title 'enchanted islands,' that some enthusiasts have bestowed on them.

"All of the California islands are rough and most of them too small to be abundantly supplied with water. They are, therefore, of little importance agriculturally. On several of them, however, sheep and goats are raised in considerable numbers. The largest of the islands, Santa Cruz, only about twenty-five miles south of Santa Barbara, has some vineyards and orange groves. "Santa Catalina, which has been developed as a pleasure resort, is the best known of the islands. On a beautiful little crescent bay of the island, facing the mainland twenty-five miles to the east, the town of Avalon has been built. Thousands of tourists visit the place every year in the steamers which run regularly from San Pedro. Avalon is the main Pacific Coast headquarters for big game fishing, the adjacent waters abounding in tuna, sea bass and swordfish. The little town has built up quite an industry in the mounting of specimens of these great fishes that they may adorn the trophy rooms of sportsmen.

"The greatest and most appealing of Catalina's charms are its under-sea gardens. Scores of boats with glass bottoms, ranging in size from rowboats to river steamers, ply the waters in and about Avalon Bay. From these novel craft thousands of visitors to the island look down into the clear waters, where they make up sea meadows and forests and the interesting fishes and other creatures that thrive abundantly in this sheltered sea nook. It is estimated that more than $100,000 is invested in the glass-bottom fleet of Catalina.

"California owes her off-shore islands not to drifting sands as do southern sections of the Atlantic Coast, but to the fact that the state is the center of one of the most active regions geologically in the world in recent geological times. San Clemente, the southernmost of the islands, has risen from the sea, according to geologists, until its topmost peak has an altitude of over 1900 feet. Santa Catalina, on the other hand, has been sinking, though evidences of the slow movement are not apparent to laymen.

"None of the California islands is of any great extent. Santa Cruz, the largest, is twenty-one miles long and has an average width of five miles. It is also the highest, having a peak which reaches an altitude of 2407 feet. Santa Barbara Island is only one and one-half miles long and one mile wide. The three Anacapa islands, which almost touch, are together slightly larger, but the individual sections are smaller. These islands are generally considered one.

"The Parallones, though small, are probably the most useful of the California islands. They are a group of rocky islets about twenty miles directly off the Golden Gate, the entrance of San Francisco's wonderful harbor. Part of these islets streams an important part of the commerce of the world, and from them are flushed by submarine cable reports of arriving and departing ships. On the largest of the islets is situated the Parallon light, which throws the first welcome beam of America to ships bound to San Francisco from across the Pacific and out of the South Seas.

"The California islands played a part in the history of the west coast. Cabrillo, the first European to sail north of the present Mexican line on the Pacific Coast, discovered them in 1542, died on one of them and was buried there. Viscaino, another Spanish explorer, surveyed them in 1602; gave them their present names and strengthened Spain's claims on them. There was no actual occupation of the islands until after 1769, when the first settlement in Alta California was made at San Diego, on the mainland near the islands. During the gold rush of '49, Catalina was occupied by United States troops of America. "When Mexican independence was gained the islands passed with the main land from Spanish to Mexican sovereignty. It has been assumed that when the United States took title to California by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo in 1848, the islands passed with the mainland. They are not specifically mentioned in the treaty, and it is probably on this fact that a Mexican claim would be based."

All the Symptoms. Sherlock Bones, the celebrated detective, looked at his visitor. "What can I do for you?" he asked kindly but severely. "My daughter Phyllis is worrying me. She has lately been in a highly nervous state. She throws her arms and kicks and throws back her head disdainfully. She bangs things down on the floor and shrieks and hollers 'I can't.'"

"Really, sir, this sounds most distressingly like a case of the great detective. "Yes," continued the distracted father, "and that isn't all. She cries out to imaginary people: 'Go! Go!' and then points to the door and cries: 'Oh, come back! Oh, come back! I do not mean it! Mercy!' "The great detective smoked his pipe in silence for a few minutes. "And does your daughter do all this before a large mirror?" he asked at last. "Yes, come to think of it, she does." "And does she go to the movies every evening?" "Um, yes, every night." "Then cheer up. Your daughter is only training herself to become a movie actress. My fee is $100." "Thank you," said the father fervently, as with great pleasure he paid up. Pittsburgh Chronicle.

TURNING OF THE YEAR.

Who, in blazing July, looks for signs of any season but summer? It is the red moon of the year, standing singular in heat and in discomfort, and yet upstanding in its field are the signs of three seasons, spring, summer and autumn.

It is in this month that the fall sets its first signal in the land, the banner's blazon being the goldenrod, a blossom associated in the mind with the turning of the leaf and the early setting of the sun. Loosely, we say that the birds flock in the fall. Their flocking begins in July when the grackles and the redwings, rallying by companies, begin their foraging in the fields. July claims a part of spring's belongings. May is the time of the making of the birds, so we are told. The cedar waxwings and the goldfinch frequently refuse to mate, or to think of things domestic, until July is upon them. As for summer, its signs are everywhere in July. Chicago Evening Post.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT'S FIRST NIGHT IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

In writing of my brother in the White House various scents stand out with special clearness. The first night he spent there comes back with a tender aroma of his love for his sisters and his loyal memory of his father.

The deed of the cowardly assassin had done its work; William McKinley was dead. The young Vice-President had made the hazardous flying trip from the heart of the Adirondack Mountains, had taken the solemn oath in Buffalo, had followed the body of his late chief to its final resting-place, and had returned to Washington. From Washington he telegraphed to my husband and myself—with the love and thought which he always showed—and told us that Mrs. Roosevelt was attending to last important matters at Sagamore Hill she could not be with him the day he was to move into the White House, and that he was very anxious that not only my sister, Mrs. Cowles, and her husband but that we also should dine with him the first night that he slept in the old mansion. So we went on to Washington and shared with him that first meal in the house for which he had such romantic attachment because it had sheltered the hero of his boyhood and his murdered, Abraham Lincoln. As we sat around the table he turned and said: "Do you realize this is the birthday of our father, September 22? I have realized it, as I signed various papers all day long, and I feel that it is a very good omen that I should begin my duties in this house on this day. I feel as if my father's hand were on my shoulder and as if there was a special blessing over the life I am to lead here."

Almost as he finished this sentence the coffee was passed to us, and that time it was the habit at the White House to pass with the coffee, a little boutonniere to each gentleman. As the flowers were passed to the President, "O how given to him was a yellow saffron rose for his boutonniere. His face flushed, and he turned again and said: "Is it not strange? This is the rose we all connect with my father."—From "My Brother, Theodore Roosevelt—Home Life in the White House," by Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, in the July Scribner.

CHURCH OPEN EVERY DAY IS SYNOD PLEA

Religious Education Declared
Vital to Progress of Nation
Says Sunday School Man;
Cigarettes Are Opposed

Religious education is an essential to growth and expansion of the church, Dr. Harold McAfee Robinson of Philadelphia, secretary of the Board of Sabbath School Work, told the State Presbyterian Synod at Berkeley today. Dr. Robinson made a plea for a church that will be open seven days of the week, stating that the slogan for the new day in religious education should be "A New Christian Educational Program Seven Days a Week, in the Home, in the Church, and in the Community."

The carrying out of such a program would, according to Dr. Robinson, result in the formation of a well rounded system, the training of a new generation, and the enlistment of a new army of Christian workers.

EDUCATION IS NEW.

The speaker said that statistics show that there are now over 12,000,000 Protestant boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 18 who are growing up in America without any religious education whatsoever, and continued:

"An adult minded church has been contented to put the burden of religious education of its more favored children on the back of a school that must open a week—the Sunday school. One hour a week is not enough. Even with the addition of the various societies of the church, it cannot be said that the church has anything like the system of education existing in secular schools."

"But a better day is dawning, and the church is now conscious of its responsibility to the rising generation. The Christian church and the Christian home are beginning to work in the same partnership, the one dealing justly with its children in the early years, and the other through Bible schools, work-day classes and schools of religious education, carrying on the work of Christianizing."

WRIGHT ACT EXPLAINED.

Dr. A. H. Briggs, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, explained the essential elements of the Wright act to the delegation this morning. He said that it was the adoption of the Volstead act in the state of California, and was also the acceptance, in advance by the state of any modification that might be passed by future sessions of Congress.

In the course of an address before the synod this morning Dr. William J. Johnson, associate secretary of the national conference, explained the tendency toward universal cigarette smoking. He declared that while he deplored the idea of women smoking, he believed that the right of "pleasure" should not be confined alone to the men. "If smoking cigarettes on the part of women is not a new thing, it is a reminder of the fact that cigarette smoke and smoking is equally obnoxious to the average woman," he said.

JAPANESE QUESTION.

The official report of the temperance committee of the synod, which was to have been made this morning, was postponed until next week.

Christian spirit in dealing with Japan will aid in establishing an understanding with that country, according to Dr. William P. Schell, of New York, secretary of the board of foreign missions, who spoke yesterday on "The Foreign Missionary: Motive and Aim." Dr. Schell pointed out that the more we encourage the Christian spirit the more good will result to the Japanese and to us.

A resolution introduced by Dr. Frank M. Shiloh, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Oakland, endorsing the conference of nations called by President Harding, was passed by the synod yesterday. The resolution was introduced by the world peace ideal sponsored by the president.

SUNDAY CLOSING FAVORED.

An expression of a "sense of shame" that California has no Sunday closing law, which would do away with the Sunday concerts in theaters, at a time conflicting with church services, was made in the report of the committee on Sabbath

HUNTER'S ADDRESS CLOSES SESSION OF PLAY EXPERTS

300 Delegates to Physical Education Association Meeting Leave City.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Physical Education Association, which has been in session in Oakland throughout the week, adjourned shortly after noon today. The three hundred delegates in the movement directed toward making the child physically fit through correction of remedial defects, exercise and play, who have been in technical conference since Monday, are beginning to depart today for their homes scattered throughout the country.

Superintendent of Oakland Schools, Fred M. Hunter addressed the final meeting of the national body, after discussing "The Responsibility of the School in Citizenship Training with Special Reference to the Responsibility of Physical Education." The delegates assembled at the Young Women's Christian Association building for their farewell luncheon and program. George N. Child, superintendent of schools in Salt Lake City, presided as chairman.

The convention body spent the afternoon at Stanford university where a notable program was arranged under the direction of C. S. Botstorf, President Emeritus. Dr. David Starr Jordan addressed the visitors.

A demonstration of the teacher training courses in the department of physical education in the University of California, summer session, was made last night in the Greek theater following the convention dinner in Hearst Hall. Tumbling, wrestling, defense for women, Greek and interpretative dancing, mass athletic tumbling and setting up drills, boxing, hand-balancing, children's singing games, tag and relay games, tennis and football instruction, were shown.

The exhibits were given under the direction of Miss Lucile Hawfield, Stockton; O. C. Mayhew, Portland, Ore.; G. E. Thomas, Martinez; C. M. Price, University of California; Frank Kleiberger, University of California; Edward Hanna, Albert Thauscher, Portland, Ore.; R. E. Johnson, University of California; E. H. Wright, University of California; Miss Genevieve Kelso, Los Angeles.

Attorney Sentenced To Jail Seeks Writ

Following the denial by the state supreme court of his petition for a writ of habeas corpus, Attorney T. L. Christensen today announced that he would present a writ of error in the matter of his adjudged contempt of court. Attorney Christensen today announced that he would present a writ of error in the matter of his adjudged contempt of court.

SUNDAY CONCERTS OPPOSED.

The synod views with apprehension the increasing tendency to place concerts in which well-known artists appear on the Sabbath day, and especially the inauguration of the policy on the part of certain theaters in large cities of holding concerts on Sundays and at the time of morning worship.

"The synod reaffirms its condemnation of the Sunday motion picture show, public dance, amusement park and all forms of commercialized entertainment."

"The synod expresses its appreciation of action of certain labor unions, especially in the city of San Francisco, in endeavoring to obtain state legislation and municipal ordinances protecting the rights of industrial workers to one rest day in seven, and places its support to similar movements in the future."

"The synod hereby endorses the work being carried on by the national Lord's Day Alliance and commends it to the support of the churches."

"At the same time the synod places on record its desire for more direct action in the city of San Francisco in the efforts which religious people within the state are making to preserve this Divine Institution."

SOCCER BALL IS URGED FOR 'RUFF NECKS'

Teaching of Highland Fling With "Lady of Lake" Declared Best by Physical Educators; to Bar Prizes

Soccer ball for the regeneration of the "rough-neck" gang, athletics for holding boys on the farm, teaching the Highland fling and Schottische with the "Lady of the Lake" in a unit program of literature and physical education were urged before the public school section of the American Physical Education Association, meeting this morning in the Municipal opera house. George Wittich, Milwaukee, was chairman. Speakers were Dr. Herbert Stolz, assistant supervisor of physical education; E. M. Sanders, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Jessie Anderson, Long Beach; J. W. Byfield, Fresno; Miss Violet Richardson, Berkeley; Miss Margaret Shand, Sacramento; Miss Violet Guthrie, Santa Monica; C. J. Martin, Pasadena; Cecil O'Neill, San Jose; Howard P. Ross, Lemoore; Miss Florence Weeks, Oakland. "The Relation of Physical Training Activities Within School Periods to Out-of-School Periods" was the conference theme.

COACHES STYLED FAILURE.

High school coaches are failures as physical educators, according to Miss Jessie Anderson, who outlined the pioneer program in Long Beach with the backing of the city commission board of education, Chamber of Commerce and other public groups.

Dr. Stolz would wipe out all distinction between physical education as taught in the schools and athletic activities, making a unit program to be carried over. He urged the establishment of a dual tradition in public schools calling upon every student to participate in its local activities and demanding that school loyalty be extended through more than one season.

WOULD ELIMINATE PRIZES.

"Youngsters don't care whether they win or not if they are having a good time. It is the principals who care," Miss Violet Richardson charged. She pleaded for elimination of cups, banners, medals in competitions. "If we need prizes to play the game it is not worth while," she pronounced. Miss Richardson said for their homes scattered throughout the country.

IN SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Ralph Barton in Sunday's TRIBUNE says that the twenty-five trade union colleges in the United States are proving themselves. Their objects are to train young men in the movement for administrative positions when the hopes of labor for industrial democracy are realized.

Ball Closes Lions' 'Most Successful Convention'

A number of special trains, bearing delegates to the fifth annual convention of the International Association of Lions Clubs, in session in Oakland during the past week, left Oakland today for different parts of the United States on the return trip. The opinion that the convention just closed was the most successful ever held by the organization, while a great number of eastern Lions announced that they will remain in Oakland for several additional days. Great satisfaction was expressed on all sides in the selection of Hot Springs, Ark., as the convention city for 1922.

HARDING COMMENDED.

Other recommendations of the convention city committee were as follows:

1—Indorsement by all Lions Clubs of the Near East relief and unequalled support of same by individual members.

2—Dispatch of a letter to President Harding commending his proposal for a conference on disarmament and declaring that the International Association of Lions Clubs is behind the movement for permanent peace.

3—Establishment of an annual reward in the form of a service badge to be awarded by international bill to the Lion who has given the most service.

4—Expression of sympathy of the association to the Lions Club of Pueblo, Colo.

At the banquet and grand ball last night at the Hotel Oakland, the returning international president, Dr. H. H. Hild, was presented with a gold watch bearing the inscription, "From the International Convention of Delegates at the Oakland assembly in grateful appreciation. July 22, 1921."

CLUBS IN MEXICO.

W. J. Higgins, of San Antonio, Texas, elected second vice-president, and also chairman of the Mexican affairs committee of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, was given permission by the convention to establish Lions Clubs in Mexico and to send to either national or local organization.

CLUBS IN MEXICO.

The final committee report of Harrison S. Mumford, of Cincinnati, Ohio, secretary-general, association, "was observing the strictest economy" and pointed out that with a membership of approximately 18,000 the international now has a surplus fund of $13,135.88.

Service Car Driver

Tarred and Feathered—George Lee, a service car driver, last night became the third victim within a week of masked bands. He was taken from an automobile in the heart of the city about 10 o'clock, clothed only in a generous coat of tar and feathers. He is 30 years old and married.

IN SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Harden Colfax in an article in The Sunday TRIBUNE, outlines the plan of President Harding to help the railroads in their financial distress. A loan of probably $100,000,000 will be made and a large part of this will be paid out at once by the roads, putting that sum into circulation and giving an impetus to business of the nation.

CONFESSIONS SECURED IN TURLOCK RIOT

Five More Arrests Are Made; Federal Authorities Will Assist Sheriff; Supply of Labor Ample, Say Growers

TURLOCK, Cal., July 23.—Four persons have given the authorities a complete account of the Japanese deportations. Chief of Police Stahl stated today, and wholesale arrests are to take place as fast as he can locate the parties wanted, he indicated.

WILL MORE ARRESTS.

These arrested today were Frank Harden and Bill Gordon, alleged to have driven the trucks in which the Japanese were deported; Clarence Hildstrom, a rancher, an itinerant worker nicknamed "Red," and Larner Jackson, a local worker.

They were immediately taken to Modesto, where they were placed in jail on charges of kidnapping and inciting a riot.

AMPLE LABOR SUPPLY.

There is now ample labor to handle the cantaloupe crop, growers said. A survey of conditions among growers indicated that they have sufficient labor, both white and Japanese, and that very few of them will suffer losses as a result of the deportations.

Large numbers of the itinerant workers have disappeared, having "run for cover" when the rumor spread of their part of the affair became apparent to them.

The federal authorities are now working with Sheriff Dallas. In addition to the sheriff's force, a large number of federal operatives were in this district yesterday and today.

MEXICO WAKENS TO WAST WEALTH OF SILVER MINES

Government Encourages New Work; Hope of Peace Held Good.

By HOLLAND, Exclusive to Oakland Tribune.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Blamey Stevens is perhaps more widely known as a writer on mining and associated subjects than he is as a practical mine operator. His work appears in several of the text books used in colleges and institutes of technology. But the operators of the great silver mines of the world esteem Stevens as one of the most successful of mine operators. He has been for ten years the consulting engineer of the very rich Rincon mine in the state of Mexico, southwest of Mexico City. He was in this important post while several revolutions were in progress, and became familiar with the economic possibilities of Mexico but also with the political situation. He is therefore qualified to speak as one of authority upon the state of the Mexican silver mines.

Stevens came to New York recently. He said that it is the belief of all who are familiar with affairs in the Mexican Republic that the time has come when the world will be able to obtain internal peace. In fact, for the first time since the administration of Porfirio Diaz there is so little for the world to do in Mexico that the world is concentrated to suppress any outbreak.

TEN YEARS BEHIND.

Stevens said that President Alvaro Obregon has been elected to the throne and that the world has a new and sincere purpose of Diaz. It remains to be shown by him that he also possesses the tact and foresight which characterized the old Diaz. In the development of the resources, which are rich almost beyond the power of imagination to picture, Mexico will try to overcome the economic backwardness which has been the result of the world's revolutions. The world is ten years behind the rest of the world. In these ten years the United States has exploited the world's resources and has now remain few new properties to be developed or old ones to be rehabilitated.

These ten years Mexico has rested, not carrying on to any great extent the development of her very rich silver mines. Today, if permanent internal peace can be obtained, the world will be able to obtain the silver mines which are now being exploited. Up to the present time Americans have not taken the lead in the exploitation of Mexican silver. The world is now interested in our Western states, where the ores are complex and require heat metal-lurgy. This has entailed large expenditures of time and money and has almost completely absorbed by the central parts of Mexico, and especially in the vicinity of Mexico City, the world's great silver mines.

Each silver mine, with its cyanide mill or treatment plant, constitutes a unit which is absolutely independent of the rest of the world.

The ore is obtained from the mine and converted into silver or silver-bullion in the form of bars and these are sold in Mexico City at a price of $100 per ounce.

The largest of several companies in the Pacific district is now American owned, being a sub-company of the United States Smelter and Refining Company, Guanajuato, which is now a low grade camp, is chiefly in the ownership of American companies.

Other important companies are the United States Smelter and Refining Company, Guanajuato, which is now a low grade camp, is chiefly in the ownership of American companies.

OTHER AMERICAN COMPANIES.

In the state of Jalisco there are two American companies operating silver mines. The managers of the companies which are now operating silver mines in Mexico are now being offered an opportunity for the operation of new mines provided only internal peace prevails throughout Mexico. These managers are considered the quietest and the most reliable in the country. They are now being offered an opportunity for the operation of new mines provided only internal peace prevails throughout Mexico.

For example, the Rincon mine, in the state of Mexico, flourished until revolutionary bands took possession of it. These marauders flooded the mines and burned the smelting plant. But the owners of the mine, who were nearly $500,000 and there was more than a million in ore ready for treatment. This mine is one of the two able to produce silver at a cost less than 20 cents an ounce. Its deep part is only 600 feet below the surface. When the mine is reopened, the ore will be rich and the cost of operation the mine will be reduced to 3,000 ounces a year. There are two or three other mines which are being offered an opportunity for the operation of new mines provided only internal peace prevails throughout Mexico.

KEY ROUTE FUNDING PLAN GIVEN PUBLIC

Reorganization Would Reduce Capital Issue By 20 Millions; Meeting Wednesday

Security holders of the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railway today were in possession of the financial reorganization plans of that system, which have been in the process of formation since September, 1919.

The plans provide for the complete refunding of practically all obligations, together with a contraction of more than $20,000,000 in outstanding issues.

Under the terms of the reorganization plan, the earliest that can be made operative is November 20. The intervening time is set aside for consideration of the plan, the voting of opinion of stockholders, the depositing of outstanding issues and necessary technical labor.

As near as it may be summarized, the plan proposes:

- 1.—Grouping of bond issues under four heads and exchanging into new bonds of the same organization.
- 2.—A new mortgage to raise $2,500,000 for improvement. This sum represents immediate issue. The mortgage is proposed to be of $10,000,000, authorization to care for future needs.
- 3.—Reduction of securities from $48,332,000 to $30,245,320 including the first block of new mortgage bonds.

An enclosed letter sets out the time limits given for consideration of the plan. It is proposed to open the public October 20 with general discussion. Thereafter for 30 days depositors of securities who are dissatisfied with the plan may withdraw any deposited securities.

DEPOSITORIES NAMED.

The depositories for securities are named as:

- San Francisco: Mercantile Trust Company, Savings Union Branch of Mercantile Trust Company, Anglo-California Trust Company.
- Oakland: Bank of Savings (Trust Department), Central National Bank of Oakland (Trust Department).

It is pointed out in the letter that 71.4 per cent of outstanding bonds already have been deposited or $11,850,000.

The committee which presents the reorganization plan is: John S. Drum, P. B. Bowles, Benjamin H. Dibble, J. Crawford Greene, J. F. Carlson, J. H. Garfield, G. W. Garfield, Paul A. Shumacher and George Tournay.

OLD SECURITIES.

Oakland-Stockton "Flyer" Is One; Hearings Offered by Railway.

Authority to discontinue twenty Southern Pacific passenger trains August 21 on account of lack of patronage was asked of the Railroad Commission today by the railroad company. Other service changes also were proposed.

The company asked the commission to arrange public hearings in regard to any of the changes if the commission felt it was desirable.

Trains 73 and 80 between Oakland and Stockton, known as the Stockton-Flyer, are the principal trains the company seeks to have discontinued.

CIVIL SERVICE FOR BERKELEY IS BARTLETT'S PLAN

Mayor Names Committee to Draw Report; Will Meet Opposition.

BERKELEY, July 23. — Mayor Louis Bartlett, today appointed a committee of five to prepare a plan of civil service examination for all municipal employees and report back to his office.

The committee is headed by Paul Ellet, chairman, and includes General H. A. Green, Dr. Jau Don Ball, V. A. Duffie and J. F. Johnson.

A division in the council is expected to result, when Mayor Bartlett brings the plan up for adoption, as Councilman Charles Heywood is known to be strongly opposed to civil service. The large number of city employees are in the police and fire departments.

Chief of Police August Vollmer is also known to be opposed to the civil service project.

Boy Falls 20 Feet.

Is Not Even Bruised

Teddy Snyder, aged 11, 669 Ninth street, leaned from the second-story window of his home, nearly twenty feet above the sidewalk, to converse with another boy, and tumbled over. Passers-by picked him up and rushed him to the Emergency hospital, where an examination failed to find even a bruise.
